GIRLS DIE, TRAPPED IN FLAMES

3 ARRESTS; HUNT FOR WOMEN AIDES

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Robert Fay, a lieutenant in the German army, who was arrested in Weehawken, N. J., yesterday, charged with conspiracy, confessed today that he had come to the United States today for the purpose of blowing up merchant ships leaving this country for Europe with arms and ammunition for the Allies.

Fay declared that his passage to America had been arranged by the German secret service and that he got into the country last April without difficulty. The prisoner said he had appealed to Captain van Papen, military attache to the German embassy in this country, but had been warned not to tamper with ships nor munitions factories in this country. However, Captain von Papen gave Fay permission to do what he could in Canada.

"I acted solely upon my own responsibility and I had no connection whatsoever with the German embassy," said Fay.

Belief that a gigantic conspiracy exists to destroy every munition plant in this country was manifested in government circles here today. The arrests yesterday and today, it is believed, may result in breaking up this plot.

Some clews unearthed indicate that a number of women were members of the band.

It is learned that William Flynn, chief of the government secret service, came to New York Saturday in anticipation of the arrests. He personally had charge of the situation, and it was reported today that he would remain in this vicinity until the case is completely cleared up. Agents of the Department of Justice are working in conjunction with the New York police.

MARK THIRD ARREST.

A third German was arrested today in the investigation of the alleged plot to blow up ships at sea. He is Paul Daehe, a graduate of Cologne University, and is held as a material witness against Fay and Walter Scholz, who were arrested at Weehawken, N. J., yesterday.

The government agents and police investigating the cases have already

Changes Coming in French Cabinet

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Announcement is made by the Intransigeant today that important changes are to be made in the French Cabinet.

PLAN VENGEANCE FOR EDITH CAVELL

This photograph of Edith Cavell, killed by a firing squad at Brussels, was taken several years ago, when Miss Cavell was visiting Chicago as nurse to a wealthy English family.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—It was stated on excellent authority here today that five wealthy American women had made an offer to the War Office to raise, equip and maintain in the field a fighting force of 30,000 men to avenge the death of Miss Edith Cavell. If the plan is accepted the majority of the recruits are expected to be Americans.

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Replying to charges printed in English papers that the execution of Miss Edith Cavell at Brussels was bungled, the Overseas News Agency today issued the following statement:

"Germany's enemies are apparently anxious to obliterate the indignation aroused by the fact that German sailors of a sinking submarine, who held up their hands in token of surrender, were nevertheless shot down one after the other. For this purpose they give the widest publicity to invented stories about the sence at a court martial against conspirators in Brussels.

"The fact is that the members of conspiracy knew what they were doing and knew what to expect under law. The conspiracy was carried on for nine months and countless soldiers were helped to reach armies now fighting against Germany.

"The German judges were confronted by the alternative of giving way to natural pity and thus endangering the country by encouraging similar enterprises, or of applying the law.

"All the stories about the details of one of the executions in Brussels are pure inventions. The court-martial proceeded in most careful manner and cleared up everything. The execution was a sad necessity, but it was carried out without incident as prescribed by law."

Meet Demands of La Follette Law

The local United States inspectors of steam vessels today received blanks from Washington for applications for seamen's certificates which are necessary under the La Follette seaman's law, which goes into effect November 4. It is expected that over 600 seamen in Boston will apply for certificates.

Drop Bombs on Venice

OFFER STRIKE PEACE PLAN

BULGAR IN INVADED BY ALLIES

PARIS, Oct. 25.—All the entente powers have joined in a new demand that Greece make a definite decision at once as to whether it shall support Germany or the allies, says a dispatch from Athens. Ex-Premier Venizelos has summoned his supporters to Athens.

By International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The left flank of the Bulgarian army in Serbia has been crushed and the Bulgar offensive in the region of Veles (Kopriulu) has been completely checked, according to an announcement made today by the Serbian legation at Athens. The French and Serbian armies have formed a junction at Krivolak, and are operating in conjunction against the Bulgars.

Krivolak lies on the Vardar River and the Salonica-Nish railway. It is six miles south of Istib.

Bulgaria has also been invaded by the French and the town of Habrovo, one mile within the border, captured.

Serbian military authorities are confident that the Bulgarians will be driven back from the Salonica-Nish railway and the line will be kept open for the movement of Anglo-French forces into central Serbia.

Furious fighting with French, Serbians and Bulgarians engaged is in progress around Veles and Uskub and southwest of Strumnitza.

Strumnitza has been evacuated by the Bulgarians, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company dispatch from Athens today. The French losses were a commanding officer and 30 men killed and 6 officers and 250 men wounded. A violent artillery duel is raging at Demirkapu.

Turkish cavalry has reached Egri Palanka, and is preceding towards Veles.

An Athens dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia of Rome states that the reported advance of the French has forced the Bulgarians to abandon Veles.

Striking northward from Gievgeli, says this dispatch, the French took up strong positions in the Demirkapu gorges, from which they threaten to encircle the left wing of the Bulgarian army.

Uskub, most important town in southern Serbia, is in the hands of the Bulgarians, but the Serbians are fighting desperately to retake it. Uskub was badly damaged by artillery fire before it fell.

An Athens dispatch states that an allied fleet is lying off Dedeagatch and that there has been intermittent shelling of Bulgarian military posts for several days. Fires started in Dedeagatch by the bombardment on the 21st destroyed part of the city, and are still burning.

The bombardment deprived the Bulgarian army of great stores of food which had been gathered at Dedeagatch. Seven cereal warehouses were destroyed by the allies' shells.

Dr. Worth's Peace Plea Applauded by the Pilgrims

That the members of the Pilgrim Publicity Association stand, almost to a man, for peace, was demonstrated this noon at their luncheon at the American House, when, at the close of a speech on the subject by Dr. Lincoln Worth, F. R. G. S., the entire body stood and cheered his sentiments.

Dr. Worth, American geographer and scholar, has been engaged by Andrew Carnegie to deliver an anti-war address to more than one hundred colleges and universities in this country.

Dr. Worth denounced Theodore Roosevelt's attitude toward the position of the United States during this war and praised President Wilson.

Pastor Gets Work for Fifteen Men

Practical Christianity imposes upon a man, according to the address of Dr. G. R. Maguire of the Ruggles Street Church before the ministers in Chipman Hall today, the duties of "getting a job when he needs it, feeding him if he is hungry, getting him a doctor if he is ill."

"I have opened a free legal bureau," he said, "and before I came down here this morning I got jobs for fifteen men."

SUMMON AGENT TO COURT

A summons to court on the charge of working strike-breakers on Sunday was granted today by Associate Justice Joseph E. Donovan of the Charlestown Court against Frank W. Beckman, general freight agent at the southern yards of the Boston & Maine.

At the same time, Mayor Curley was conferring with a committee headed by Michael J. White and representing the strikers. The Mayor on Saturday invited the Boston & Maine to confer with a committee of strikers at his office, but after the New Haven and Boston & Albany freight handlers struck Saturday afternoon, the Mayor extended additional invitations to representatives of those two roads, as well as to the Chamber of Commerce and the Port Directors.

That conference was planned for 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the Mayor said this morning:

"It is hoped then to find a solution for all the problems involved in the situation."

STRIKERS' PROPOSAL.

The strikers proposed to the Mayor a plan based on these two points:

1—The situation to be submitted to arbitration by a board of three, one named by the strikers, one by the roads, a third by those two.

2—The strikers to return to work and abide by the decision of this board.

The men had an extended talk with the Mayor, and afterward the Mayor said:

"The committee presented proof that the strike was not called on an 'hour's notice,' as some suppose. They showed that their demands had been presented as early as the Spring of 1914. They said the road had repeatedly refused refused their demands, and that they struck only as a last resort and after eighteen months of conferences with the road's representatives."

The Mayor also said he had received a letter from President Hus-

Famous Venice Church Damaged in Air Attack

By International News Service.

ROME, Oct. 25.—Three air attacks were made against Venice by Austrian aeroplanes last night. It was officially announced today. A shell struck the Chiesa Degli Scalzi Church, destroying the ceiling with its large fresco by G. B. Tiopolo.

Incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped, one of them falling in the piazza of St. Mark. Various parts of the city were damaged. The text of the official statement follows:

"Enemy aeroplanes made three attacks against Venice last night, dropping incendiary and explosive bombs. One struck the Chiesa Degli Scalzi, destroying the ceiling with painting by Tiepolo. Another incendiary bomb fell in the piazza of St. Mark, but did not do any damage.

"Other bombs struck various parts of the city with slight damage."

The Chiesa Degli Scalzo was formerly known as the "Church of the Barefooted Friars," and was begun in 1649. From 1653 to 1668 workmen added a new facade to the building, making it the most sumptuous church of Venetian Baroque style in northern Italy.

PERISH IN FACTORY FIRE

By International News Service.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 25.—Ten men and girls are known to be dead, and many were injured, as the result of a fire in the factory of the Union Paper Box Company this afternoon, following an explosion.

Twenty-six men and six girls were trapped in the burning building, and an hour after the fire had broken out their fate was still in doubt.

An explosion in the feed store of James Brown & Co. started the fire. Fed by tons of paper, it spread with lightning-like rapidity, cutting off the escape of the frantic men and women.

The entire fire-fighting department was called to the scene and policemen helped the firemen rescue the working girls, who were entrapped on the upper floors and roof.

The first victim was a young woman, who, after being badly burned, was carried from the building by firemen. She died shortly afterwards in the hospital. Firemen shortly afterwards found four charred bodies upon the third floor.

MAYOR AIDS FIREMEN.

Mayor Armstrong deserted his office and rushed to the scene in an automobile to help direct the firemen.

When the Mayor learned that a number of working girls and men were trapped in the building, he gave orders to the firemen and police to do everything in their power to rescue them. The Mayor set an example by his own bravery. Firemen and policeman risked their lives in the smoke-filled and flame-filled buildings.

On the second alarm an automobile fire truck, which was dashing to the scene at top speed, capsised while turning a corner and three firemen were hurt. The others, though badly shaken up, insisted on going to the fire. Four firemen were overcome by smoke.

GIRLS HURT JUMPING.

Several girls were injured by jumping. Employes of the Zenith Stove Company, the American Electro Plating Company and the James Pollock Harness Company, all of which were in the same building as the Union Paper Box Company, had narrow escapes, so quickly did the fire eat through the building. Cardboard and straw used in the box factory made volumes of thick, greasy, black smoke, which rolled up in billows, obscuring the sky and hindering the firemen.

Despite the thick smoke and the heat the firemen were able to make their way through the third floor of the burning building. In one of the rooms of the box factory they came upon the bodies of four girls, who had died of suffocation.

ARREST OFFICERS IN BOMB PLOT

confiscated 300 pounds of dynamite, a high-powered automobile, a speedy motor boat and materials for the making of time bombs.

Dr. Albert Edler, secretary of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, denied that any of the men arrested were connected with the German embassy or were even known there.

The prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Sander in Weehawken and remanded to jail without bail for twenty-four hours on request of the federal authorities. They will be arraigned again tomorrow, charged with conspiracy and having explosives in their possession unlawfully.

According to the men in charge of the investigation, the conspiracy is widespread, extending to many parts of the country, and the brains of it is Fay, who is said to have been an officer in the German army as late as last year, when he took part in the battle of the Marne in France.

Detectives are making efforts to connect the activities of Fay and his companions with numerous explosions that have occurred on munitions ships and fires in plants manufacturing powder and other war supplies for the allies.

Agents of the British government in this country are deeply interested in Fay and believe that his imprisonment has been made. They claim they have evidence to show that Fay is a dangerous spy sent here by the Secret Service arm of the German Foreign Office.

Mr. Fay is alleged to have offered a detective $1,000 to release him. He had plenty of money and seemed confident of being able to get any amount he wanted. Fay had $450 in new $20 bills and gold in a trunk and $20 in his pocket.

Fay and Scholz, alleged leaders of the plot, arrested in a wood at Greatwood, N. J., as they were filling a small bomb with tri-nitrate toluol, the most deadly explosive known, are being held on a charge of conspiracy. In a series of raids immediately after the arrest of the two men the police captured and confiscated the following:

A chart of the harbor of New York, showing the fortifications and the location of all the steamship piers.

Twenty-five pounds of tri-nitrate of toluol.

Twenty-five large sticks of dynamite.

Four canes containing 300 pounds of chlorate of potash.

Five ingenious mines, to be attached to the screw of steamships, with time clock attachment and worth $1,000 each.

A quantity of picric liquid, believed to be picric acid.

Two hundred cleverly constructed bomb cylinders.

One high powered motor boat.

One high power automobile, of foreign make.

Four hundred percussion caps.

Two automatic pistols of German make, fully loaded and a long knife.

Fay was quizzed at the Weehawken police station as having made this statement:

"I had the honor to be a lieutenant in the Sixteenth Infantry at Cologne. I fought in the battle of the Marne, served through the Winter campaign and last March I was decorated with the Iron Cross for bravery in the Champagne district.

CERTAIN TO DESTROY.

"With two or three other men of my regiment I pelted a section of a French trench with bombs until finally the soldiers fled. For this act I was told that I might be relieved of duty at the front.

"I had the basic idea of a contrivance, more dangerous than any submarine, which would for once and all put an end to the shipment of munitions from this country to the allies.

"After I had been called back to Cologne I was instructed to report to Chief Secret Service Agent Jonnersan at Brussels. There I again told my plan before the government authorities, and I was given $2,000 to come over here and perfect my invention. I sailed on the steamship Rotterdam early in April."

"How did you elude the English officers who undoubtedly searched the ship?" asked Fanney Lavine.

"Well," the lieutenant replied, with a shrug of his shoulders, "you see that the British are not up to everything. I did not have much trouble in keeping out of the way while I was on the ship. I kept to myself. That is the best way to do things.

EXPLAINS BOMBS.

"This was not my first visit in America, as I was here some four years ago, when I had some business affairs in the West. It was my intention to get my invention in such shape that it could be effectively used, and I did not lose any time in making the necessary preparations.

"Now the zinc box which you found in my room is what I consider a model of one of the surest means of sinking a ship. It can be so arranged with time devices that it can be exploded one or two or four days after a ship leaves port.

"What about the other bomb?" Captain Tunney asked, holding up the cylindrical contrivance which had been found in the room used by the two men.

"That could also be used to destroy any ship on the ocean," he explained, as he told how ingeniously he had placed pellets which were held together by the pressure of a small quantity of sugar. By permitting water to percolate into the receptable the sugar would melt, and the springs thus released would cause a detonating cap to set off such explosive as might be used.

DENIES BOMB PLANTING.

"T. N. T. would probably be the most effective for such a bomb," Fay told the detectives.

Fay's brother-in-law, Scholz, was not inclined to explain the mechanism of any of the contrivances which were found. He told Captain Tunney that he only acted on the directions given him by the lieutenant.

Fay admitted to the detectives that he had visited a number of towns, including Bridgeport, Ct., where ammunition factories are located. He denied that he had "planted" or had so far made any effort to explode one of his bombs.

"If I had been successful in my patents I am sure that I would have made a great deal of money. But now, with this unpleasant notoriety, I am afraid that the whole thing will be ruined. I do not know what to do, for I failed utterly in my purpose."

When seized in the Palisaden woods, Fay first said he was a sergeant in the German army. He offered Detective Barnitz $1,000 for his release and made an advance payment of $60 on account.

Information gained from tapping telephone wires caused the police to notify the Federal authorities and steamship companies, who instituted by wireless a search for bombs on the steamers sailing from New York in the last three days.

Fay's passport purports to be signed by the police authorities of Cologne and the German consul at Rotterdam. He sailed as a merchant.

Scholz, who described himself as an architectural draftsman, was at one time employed by the Lackawanna Railroad.

Detective George Barnitz, one of Captain Tunney's bomb squad that has been working for several months on waterfront and ship explosions, picked up the clew that led to Lieutenant Fay and his Union Hill arsenal.

In the lobby of the Hotel Breslin early last week the detectives caught scraps of conversation concerning an order for picric acid to be delivered to an address in Hoboken.

SUSPECT IS FOLLOWED.

The detective knew that Hoboken is the headquarters of German activity, and that large quantities of high explosives are reputed to have been acquired by German agents and stored there secretly.

Barnitz followed a suspected German agent from the Ritz Carlton Hotel to the Breslin, and there saw him meet the war broker who was talking about the picric acid for Hoboken.

He followed the war broker to Hoboken and Weehawken, to Hersig's garage at No. 210 Main street, where he found Scholz and traced him to the address in Union Hill, where Scholz and Fay have been rooming for the last week.

So far Barnitz' work was all on slight suspicions, but he persisted until he learned of the placing of an order through the war broker for delivery of fifty-two pounds of trinitrate of toluol ("T-N-T") to the garage on Main street, Weehawken.

Barnitz arranged to intercept this delivery and sent detectives Jerry Murphy and Joseph Fennolly of the bomb squad, disguised as truckmen, to deliver the box last Friday.

The box delivered to the police contained no explosive, but looked on the outside like a regular package of the deadly "T-N-T," fifty-two pounds of which would make a dozen powerful bombs.

The chance was taken that the substitution of a harmless material would not be discovered before purchasers put it to use.

FREIGHT AGENT SUMMONED IN STRIKE

tis of the Boston & Maine, but he declined to make it public.

"I don't believe," he said, "that this letter represents President Hustis' best thought. It appeals to me as having been written in haste. I am confident that on sober thought Mr. Hustis will recognize the logic of the men's stand and is willing after to return to work at once, while their demands are submitted to arbitration."

The letter sent to the Mayor by President Hustis was, however, given out by the Boston & Maine. It reads, in part, as follows:

In this present difficulty to question controversy, the men, in organized labor is limited to the employees of the railroads, has written whether as to rates of pay and hours of service or as to the matter of requirements, such a schedule existed prior to August 1, 1915, and the answer is in the negative. It is, therefore, perfectly clear that the terms of the agreement have not been given up by the men.

At 10 o'clock a. m. on Thursday, October 21, a freight handlers employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad Company requested the President that new rates be put into effect, the men would cease work at 12 o'clock on that day, or one hour and forty minutes after said notice was given.

There can be no dispute that it was urged by the committee that they delay this action. There is an orderly procedure for dealing with the matters which these men had before them.

The committee assumed the responsibility of calling a strike and the management at once took action to fill their places. Men were secured with the understanding that they would be given regular employment as they were found to be competent to do the work. It must be noticed that the discharge of these men and the lack those who summarily left the service on one hour and forty minutes after said notice was given.

A large number of men have been put to work, most of whom reside in Boston and immediate vicinity. Those of these men who reside at the Boston terminals will be provided with lodging and meals. Some certain inquiries all have been forwarded, and the general terms briefly stated readily for delivery.

Yours very truly,

E. D. HUSTIS, President.

BETTER HOUSING DEMANDED.

Strike-breakers were at work at the various freight houses today. At Pier 4, South Boston, strike-breakers were first housed in railroad cars. Mayor Curley and Dr. Mahoney of the Health Commission ordered that plan changed, as the cars were unfit for such use. The majority of the men were then shifted to the steamer Block Island.

Dr. Mahoney announced today, however, that he would not allow the continued use of the Block Island as a barracks for the strike-breakers, as he said it was not fitted for such use.

The Boston & Albany reported today that the usual number of men were at work in that road's freight sheds.

The Charlestown freight houses had about 150 strike-breakers at work. It was here that the strike drew court action. Judge Donovan declining to summon the men at work, but granting the request in the case of Beckman as the man responsible.

The Boston & Maine has a blanket permit for Sunday work where perishable goods are involved, and the case of Beckman will hinge, it was said, on the question whether freight consignation was sufficient reason to plead "necessity" for Sunday work.

The Sherman Detective Agency is hiring men for the Boston & Maine and the Boston & Albany, and an office of the agency said today:

"We will have hired 500 men by night, and by 8 or 9 o'clock this morning. No men are being imported by us. Every man we hire is a Boston man."

So long as the freight handlers and the railroad officials are negotiating for a settlement of the strike, the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration will not interfere, Commissioner Charles G. Wood of that board said today.

"I understand that Mayor Curley is in touch with the parties in interest and has outlined a plan by which the trouble may be brought to an end. This board has made an effort to ascertain the facts connected with the dispute. Apparently negotiations are in progress and if the interested parties are making an effort to bring an end to the strike the board will wait until it becomes apparent that such negotiations are of no avail. If this situation develops we will offer our services."

A considerable amount of the grain crop will be reserved for stock feeding purposes. A separate government office has been created for the distribution of the potato crop, which is very big this season.

A price list, fixing the maximum amounts which may be charged for provisions, is being made up. Special care will be taken in regard to milk for babies and the sick. Butter cards will be issued similar to those issued for bread earlier in the war. Steps are being taken to provide meat for the poorer classes at a reasonable sum. Officials say there has been a congestion of food in some parts of Germany and a scarcity in other parts of the country.

FREEDOM SEEMS PROBABLE FOR CHARLTON

By International News Service.

COMO, Italy, Oct. 25.—Both of 3 to 1 were made here today that Porter Charlton would be free within twenty-four hours after the conclusion of his trial for the murder of his wife.

The tip has gone out that the defence and prosecution had agreed upon a verdict of "guilty, with extenuating circumstances," and the Italian gambling fraternity accepted it as correct.

Under such a verdict the defendant would be subject to a sentence of imprisonment for six years. Charlton has been in prison five years and four months, and with the year's reduction granted by royal decree at the beginning of the war, his prison term would be completed.

"HAPPY BILL" SURPRISES WORCESTER PEOPLE

Rheumatic "Globe Trotter" Meets Friends Who Saw Him in Wheel Chair Two Years Ago —Can Hardly Believe He Is the Same Man.

"Happy Bill" has friends wherever he goes and his smile, which is responsible for the "Happy" end of his name, expanded to the limit as he shook hands yesterday with some of his Worcester friends. He said:

"I told you I would find something that would make me walk when I saw you in Worcester two years ago, and I also said if I ever got well I would come back over the same route and prove it to you. I guess I am keeping my word, although I little thought I would find the preparation in New England.

"I look happy; that's my first name and why wouldn't I? If you had spent 15 years in a wheel chair with both legs helpless from rheumatism and one arm useless, suffering pain day and night and traveling about the country from coast to coast trying to find a cure, I think you would be happy, too.

"It's a long road that has no turn, but I didn't think the end of my 37,000-mile journey looking for a remedy would end in success in New England, and for that reason New England is the next place to Paradise. In almost every city, town and village people would tell me of some remedy, some one of every body seemed to have a remedy for rheumatism or rheumatic arthritis—that's rheumatism of the joints, the kind that kept me in a wheel chair. I tried about everything suggested, no matter how ridiculous they seemed, because I wanted to get well and use my feet—they were not even ornamental. When in Hartford, Conn., I met a man who was taking treatment at Hot Springs from the same physician that treated me. He was very lame when I last saw him, and as he now appeared well I asked him what he had been taking. He said Var-ne-sis and advised me to try it. Well, I didn't have any faith, but thought I would give it a good trial. I persisted in the treatment and now you see the results.

"I'm in Worcester to show that the seemingly impossible has been accomplished—I'm a well man, as you can see, and I didn't have to go to Germany to get well.

"I want to say to every rheumatic and to the friends of those suffering from rheumatism get Var-ne-sis, stick to it until you haven't a pain or an ache, as I did. A few bottles won't do it—don't try it."

W. A. Varney said: "I am presenting this man in person in almost every city and town in New England that he may show you that every word I say is true. He has the full use of every joint in his body, and I defy any man to show that he has a sign of rheumatism. He is in perfect health and weighs 225 pounds. Ask the strictest investigation of this case. This is a strong statement, when you consider that he was confined to a wheel chair for 15 years by rheumatism of the joints."

He must have the BEST light and at the LOWEST COST—and we can give it!

In your case—is your place of business adequately and pleasantly lighted? Have you yet taken advantage of the new WELSBACH KINETIC SYSTEM OF SEMI-INDIRECT LIGHTING? We shall be very glad to send a Representative at any time to explain the many advantages of this method.

And for your Workshop or Factory there is that well-known and very popular light, the REFLEX 20 LAMP. Remember that the difference between profit and loss often depends upon the efficiency of the late afternoon's operation. Where, owing to poor lighting, there is a deterioration in quality and quantity of output and an increase in the amount of stock spoiled as daylight fades, the entire dividend may be shaved. But with the well-diffused, all-pervading light of the modern gas lamp, installed according to proper engineering principles, WORK MAY BE CONTINUED AT FULL PRESSURE UP TO THE MOMENT OF CLOSING. Quality and quantity remain unimpaired, stock is saved and accidents avoided.

MELLEN HELPS GET NEW HAVEN LETTERS IN

By L. V. B. RUCKER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—What appeared to be a tempest in a teapot took up the whole forenoon today in the New Haven conspiracy trial, when after Charles S. Mellen and two other witnesses had been used to identify letter press files from the New Haven president's office and had been badgered and harrassed for two hours and a half by R. V. Lindabury, the defence blandly admitted there was no question that the books were the files of New Haven.

"But," said Lindabury, "our contention is that a letter copied in a letter press is not necessarily a letter sent out."

Mellen partly saved the day several times by recognizing the books by their exteriors as well as the signatures.

The government had the greatest difficulty in identifying files of letters between Clark and Mellen and at recess had not succeeded in getting all of them in.

FILENE TELLS WHY HE FAVORS WALSH

Edward A. Filene, president of William Filene Sons' Company, has declared for Governor Walsh.

This is rather an unusual action on Mr. Filene's part, because, as he says, he has always been independent in politics and avoided taking any partisan position.

Mr. Filene's activities, however, in matters clothed with public interest, have been world-wide. His first made his influence felt fifteen years ago when he backed financially the struggle to prevent the subways of Boston from falling into the hands of the Boston Elevated Railway. It was largely through his efforts that Boston now owns its great underground highways.

He was one of the two or three prime movers in the organization of the City Club, which had the quasi-political object of affording a common meeting ground for all classes of men in the city. The extraordinary success of this institution is known all over the country.

A PROFOUND THINKER.

He next helped to reorganize the Boston Chamber of Commerce and to make it a progressive and independent body. With his assistance it became the largest business organization in the world.

He is said to be the originator and the chief supporter of the United States Number of Congress, which is now so successfully developing useful functions in the national councils.

When the war broke out he was in Europe organizing an International Chamber of Commerce, which, if it could have been organized sooner, might have done a great deal to prevent the war.

He has been active in organizing and extending the credit union system by which people in need of money receive help without resort to money sharks.

He has always been a forward-looking man and a profound thinker. Those who understand his extraordinary though modest public service will be much interested in his views concerning the election.

"THIS IS CRITICAL YEAR."

I have never before taken a public part in partisan politics. I have never made a political speech. What work has been given me to do of a public nature has been concerned with measures and not with the election of individuals. But this year the situation seems to require that every man who understands it, shall lay aside his personal desires and state his opinions and stand up and be counted.

This is a critical year in our political life because we are now in a state of transition. If we are not very careful, we shall suffer a political reaction that will undo the great progress of the last few years.

Those men who represent the unprogressive elements in the community, though defeated in the political skirmishes which preceded the last national election and overwhelmingly defeated in the last national election, are still struggling to recover their old power in this country and in this State and to suppress the progressive element in their own party. Give them that power once more and they will turn back the hand of progress ten years.

BOTH UNIMPEACHABLE.

In my judgment, it is of the utmost importance to the welfare of the nation and of Massachusetts that every political organization where these reactionary gentlemen appear to be again temporarily in control, shall be defeated in order that it may become clear not only to them but to their reluctant followers that the way of success does not lie in their direction.

The personal characters of both Governor Walsh and Mr. McCall are unimpeachable. That is or ought to be the normal conditions of things in American politics. But we are obliged to make our choice according as we believe the public record, political principles and associations of one or the other candidate means a greater good to the Commonwealth.

Those who do not want a more progressive Republican party, those who are satisfied with the Republican party in the days when Speaker Cannon and his gang rules expressed the attitude of the party toward the public and the party, and are satisfied with him and his followers' interpretation of Lincoln's phrase, "a government of, for and by the people," will be satisfied with the candidacy of Mr. McCall and the restoration to power in Massachusetts of those citizens who were and are the local representatives of the old Stand-pat Republican regime.

But those Republicans who believe that the Republican party can and should be a party of progress, who believe that the Republican party can and should be a party of progress, who believe that the Republican party can and should be a party of progress,

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 25.—Two shots were heard early today in the "French Acre" section, but the police were unable to learn who fired them. This was the second time since the textile strike started that the police have been alarmed by mysterious early morning shooting.

Adam Sharpie and Karlis Baranski were held without bail today in the District Court on a charge of murdering Demetrios Karademos, also known as Jim Stivie, who died of injuries received in a strike riot a week ago.

REPORT GERMAN GAINS IN EAST AND WEST

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Further gains for the Austro-German armies of invasion in Serbia, all along the line, were reported today by the German general staff. Passages over the Tamnava river, south of the Save and northwest of Ub, were captured, while the armies of General von Gallwitz and General Koevess drove the Serbians from their positions.

In the extreme northeastern section of Serbia the Austro-German forces that crossed the Danube near Orsova have advanced as far as Slip.

In the western theatre of war the Germans repulsed strong French attacks in the Champagne region and inflicted heavy losses upon the attacking forces.

In the eastern theatre Field Marshal von Hindenburg's armies repulsed Russian attacks southeast of Riga and against our positions northwest of Dunaburg (Dvinsk), which had been taken from the Russians on Saturday. The number of prisoners taken by these reached 25 officers and 2,705 men. We also took 12 machine guns and one mine thrower. General von Linsengen's Austro-German forces west of Komarow have penetrated the Russian positions on a front of nearly three miles.

"Balkan theatre—German troops have occupied the passages of the Tamnava River, northwest of Ub. General Koevess' army has reached the line of Lazarevac-Rebrovac. General von Gallwitz's army has stormed the dominating heights east of Baliclana.

"It has captured Oliwidica and Zabari and reached the line of the Presedin heights, south of Petrovac and west of Molynico. The left wing of the Austro-German armies after the passage of the Danube at Orsova has reached Sip. General Boyadyoff's army has completed the passage between Drenovagtava and Mirkovac, 12 miles north of Pirot."

REV. C. C. WILSON, Roslindale rector, whose marriage has been postponed.

WARDEN TO CARE FOR PASTOR'S LOVE CASE

The Rev. Charles C. Wilson, rector of the Church of Our Saviour, Roslindale, whose marriage was postponed because of a threatened breach of promise suit, has placed the matter in the hands of the senior warden of the church. On Saturday he declared there were no grounds for the suit.

The following statement was made by J. Fred Howarth, the senior warden:

"I consider this a personal matter of our rector which does not concern our parishioners until such time as papers be a proper time to decide whether it is of sufficient importance to bring it officially before the church authorities."

Walter A. Dane, attorney for Mr. Wilson, said that as far as he knew no papers had been filed in the threatened suit of Miss Laura Johnson of Minnesota, which resulted in the indefinite postponement of the rector's marriage to Miss Mary Louise Clark of Burlington, Vt., daughter of a prominent New York broker.

Miss Johnson was a member of the class of 1914 at the University of Vermont and met Mr. Wilson when he was assistant to the Rev. A. C. A. Hall, bishop of the Vermont diocese. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University, England.

ITALIAN ARMY ADVANCES ALL ALONG LINE.

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ROME, Oct. 25.—Italian troops have shattered the Austrians' first line defences in nearly every sector along the 200 mile battle front, and are now attacking the second line with marked success. At several points even the second line has been pierced.

King Victor Emmanuel made a flight of fifty miles along the front Sunday in a military aeroplane, visiting the chief positions captured from the Austrians. The aeroplane was fired upon five times by the Austrian gunners, but the pilot of the machine was one of the most skilful in the army and he kept it out of range of the shells.

The King has addressed to General Count Cadorna a message congratulating him upon the success of the general offensive which was opened after six weeks' preparation.

Great enthusiasm has been aroused by General Cadorna's report of progress in almost every important district. The Italians are making great efforts along the Isonzo River, and the Austrians are finding it difficult to hold the Carso plateau.

Austrian prisoners are passing in a steady stream through towns behind the Italian lines. Many of the prisoners are veterans of Austrian campaigns on other fronts, but they agree that the bombardment with which the Italians preceded their infantry attack was the most terrific they had ever witnessed.

For a week the Italian guns hammered the entrenchments of the enemy, plowing great holes where the Austrians had constructed their strongest defences.

The general offensive by the Italian troops had been well planned in advance and it is because of this that Italy at the present is unable to send troops to aid Servia. The entire Italian army is concentrated for the blows that are to be administered during the next few weeks.

In other ways, however, Italy will aid her allies in the Balkans. Steamers for the transportation of troops have been turned over to the other allies.

AUSTRIANS REPORT SUCCESSES ALONG THEIR BATTLE LINES

By International News Service.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—Today's report from the War Office announces Austro-Hungarian successes in Serbia, in Russia and on the Italian front. The report follows:

"On the Italian front the enemy renewed most violent attacks on nearly the entire front. The Italians suffered terrible losses and obtained no success whatever. Monte St. Michele is firmly held by the Austro-Hungarian troops. Other positions were defended with the same success. Wherever the Italians happend to reach the Austro-Hungarian positions they were soon driven back by a counter-attack.

"They suffered particularly heavy losses when their attacks on the Gorizia bridge-head at the Isonzo, in the Tyrol and the Dolomite Alps, were repulsed.

"The Austro-Hungarians were equally successful in the Russian war theatre. They took by storm in the Styr district the tenaciously-defended village of Kulci, near Tarbatarsuk. One Austro-Hungarian division, together with German reinforcements, yesterday captured ten officers and 1,800 men. Near Novo Alexinez we recaptured the heights to the east of Lopuszno.

"Near Komarow the enemy was repulsed.

"In the Serbian war theatre the Austro-Hungarians, Germans and Bulgarians continue to advance. The Serbians are retreating, being dispersed and put to flight wherever they make a stand."

FRENCH TAKE SALIENT IN CHAMPAGNE

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Continuing their drive against the German positions in Champagne, the French troops are steadily gaining ground. The War Office announced today that the French had captured a salient a mile long in Champagne.

The following communique was issued by the War Office:

"In Champagne our troops won an important success yesterday. The enemy had held before his second line position a very strongly organized salient which had resisted our previous attacks.

"The southwestern section of this salient rested on the slope north of Hill No. 196, two kilometres (1.24 miles) to the north of Mesnil-Les-Hurlus—a very important work called La Courtine (The Curtain)—which we had just captured in a hot fight.

"This work had a length of about 200 yards and a depth averaging 250 yards, and contained three or four lines of trenches connected with subterranean tunnels and communicating trenches organized for a defensive purpose.

"Despite the strength of this fortified system and the bravery shown by the defenders, our troops succeeded in occupying all of it after a vigorous preparation with artillery and violent combats.

"By the end of the day the enemy, whose losses were serious, left in our hands 300 prisoners belonging to three different regiments.

"No important action occured on the rest of the front."

Age of Gould Waif Puzzles Many Doctors

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—How old is Master Finley Jay Shepard? This question concerning the founding which has arisen since his adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Finley B. Shepard has perplexed noted physicians and psychologists.

The AMERICAN was told today that the child had been submitted to a chosen number of specialists. All differed widely in their reports.

"While it is about certain that Finley is between four and five," said the AMERICAN'S informant, "there is great difficulty in fixing his age nearer. Whether he is a few months under four or a few months under five is undecided. The doctors are from three to twelve months apart in their estimates.

"What is to be done about it?" was asked.

"The matter will be decided fully this Winter," was replied. "Finley will have a regular birthday, too, was added, "just like other boys."

Pressing questions failed to elicit just how the age of the boy is to be determined.

Mrs. Sawtelle Removed to an Insane Hospital

Mrs. Mary C. Sawtelle of Winthrop and Hartford, Ct., whose marital troubles have finally reached the divorce court stage, has been removed to the Westboro Insane Hospital, according to statements today of the hospital authorities and her brother, Dr. William H. Newton of No. 55 Marion street, Brookline. More than a year ago the Sawtelle troubles came before the public, each making charges against the other.

Today Dr. Newton said: "My sister was committed to an institution at Westboro on October 15, suffering from a mental trouble. Previously she had been at the Massachusetts General Hospital and was sent to Westboro from there."

Over the telephone the hospital authorities said that Mary C. Sawtelle had been admitted to the hospital.

GOVERNOR OFF ON LAST WEEK OF CAMPAIGN

Enthused by the great demonstration given him at the Boston ratification meeting, Governor Walsh started today on the last week of his vigorous campaign. The Governor left Boston early this morning and began his first rally at Sandwich depot shortly before 10 o'clock.

Governor Walsh renewed his attack on the influences of invisible government, and he also told the Cape farmers the reasons that prompted him to veto the milk bill.

"Despite the fact that the number of cows in this State has decreased steadily for several years, and despite the further fact that the price of milk has steadily advanced, the Legislature sent to me for my approval a bill that would have driven the farmers out of business in this State," said Governor Walsh.

"The sole purpose of a few men in the Legislature seemed to be to deliver the dairying business into the control of the milk contractors. Prices of milk have steadily advanced but the farmers are getting no more than they did ten years ago. With this bill enforced, not only would the consumers be obliged to pay even more than now, but the farmers would have been placed absolutely under the control of the contractors. That is why I vetoed it.

"If I am re-elected," the Governor concluded, "I promise you that I will recommend an impartial investigation of the milk industry to determine why the people are required to pay such an enormous price for milk."

Governor Walsh spoke during the day at West Barnstable, Barnstable, Yarmouth, Hyannis, Cotuit, Falmouth, Woods Hole, Onset and Wareham.

The Governor's night rallies will be at Fall River, New Bedford and Taunton. At the Fall River rally, Edward A. Filene of Boston will make his first appearance on a political platform and will tell the reasons why Governor Walsh should be supported in the present campaign.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 25.—The following official statement has been issued here:

The Prinz Adalbert was completed in 1902 and ranked as an armored cruiser. She was of 8,050 tons displacement and 394 feet long.

Fall of Dvinsk Now Imminent

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—German troops are only nine miles from Dvinsk, the important Russian city on the Duena River, against which they have been driving for months.

From Illuxt, the capture of which by the Germans was announced yesterday, heavy howitzers are being moved into position to bombard the Russian forts defending Dvinsk.

The fall of Dvinsk is believed to be imminent.

From three sides the Russian positions defending Dvinsk are being raked by a terrific artillery fire. Every grade of guns, from 12-inch howitzers down, are being used. Skoda guns from the Austrian army, which were used to batter down the defences of Ivangorod and Novo Georgievsk, are now being used against the fortress of Dvinsk.

WHAT IS AUTO-INTOXICATION

The best and clearest definition is "Self-Intoxication, or poisoning by compounds produced internally by oneself."

Physicians agree that 95% of all illness is due to this cause, brought on by accumulated waste in the Lower Intestine. The one sure, natural and safe way to keep the Intestine clean and free from this waste is by an occasional Internal Bath with simple warm water given by the "J.B.L. Cascade."

You will be astonished at your feelings the morning after taking an Internal Bath by means of the "J.B.L. Cascade." You will feel bright, brisk, confident and as though everything is "working right"—and it is.

Half a million Americans are now using this method with resulting better health and greater vigor. This method will be explained in a book by Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores in New England, who will also give you a most interesting book, free, on the subject by an eminent specialist. Ask or send for this booklet, called "Why Man of Today is Only 50% Efficient," while it is on your mind.—Advertisement.

HARVARD-TIGER GAME ONLY TWO WEEKS AWAY

By SYDE LYNES.

For the next several weeks all eyes will be focused on the Princeton football eleven. Here is the only team which thus far has come through the season with a record satisfactory to its supporters. The Tigers struck their stride early and have maintained it right along. They should have an easy time against Williams this Saturday; their next real game is with Harvard, November 6.

Whether the Princeton-Harvard game will really be a big game remains to be seen. Certainly Harvard's showing against Cornell does not warrant any positive prediction. Looking back at Saturday's game in the Stadium, there was little to criticize in the Harvard defense. As a whole, it showed strength for this time of the year, against a line as powerful and heavy as Cornell's.

Harvard's great fault in the Cornell game was its failure to tackle the ball. In a varsity machine such a fault is inexcusable and it is up to the coaches to hammer at the necessity of this fundamental of football this early in the season. Such an exhibition as that of Saturday does not prove that secret practice for the benefit of the game, but to the end of the season, has amounted to much to date.

HARVARD'S OFFENCE POOR.

There is essentially nothing wrong with an eleven which cannot play as uphill game, but which goes to pieces just because its opponent sees the jump on it and scores a touchdown. From that moment in the game Saturday Harvard was a different team. White its defence was consistently good, its offence was disorganized and a faltering thing at best. The men in the backfield did not seem to know what they were supposed to do. Certain it is that such a thing as an assignment on a play is frequently forgotten.

Harvard cannot plead inexperience any longer. There were only three men on the team starting against Cornell who had not played upon their letter in the Yale game. At that, Dudnum, the only "green" man of the entire quintet, put up as good a game, if not a better one, as any of his four associates.

If the reports which issue from the Stadium relative to secret practice are to be relied upon, the varsity players are getting too much time and not enough real scrimmaging. When they finished the first half of the contest with Cornell they left the field pretty well tuckered out. Almost literally their tongues were hanging out, while the Cornell men, although the aggressors during most of the half, were fresh.

PENN STATE COMES NEXT.

Harvard will have no snap against Penn State this Saturday, and, at the present rate of progress, Princeton will have a pleasant meal off the Harvard eleven the following Saturday. Last year Penn State held Harvard to a 12 to 12 tie, and this Penn State-Pennsylvania game is the Stadium with a mighty spicy record.

The only major game they have played was with Pennsylvania which they won, 14 to 0. As a rule, this time does not seem to cut much ice this season, the result of this game does not really count. However, Penn State can be expected to keep the Crimson moving.

To return to the Harvard team. Looking at the situation perfectly sanely, it does not seem extravagant to say that Harvard put on the gridiron last Saturday a team which was fully as strong, if not stronger, than Cornell, potentially. Yet at times the eleven failed to even show the remotest signs of common football instinct. Take this instance for example. One of Mahan's punts was particularly

DEFEATS WORRY BIG COLLEGE ELEVENS

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

There may be something wrong with Tale football, as the cry is made after Saturday's game, but it fell in the midst of the two teams. A Cornell man picked it up, and, with any number of Harvard men standing about, made his way from among them and started off for the goal.

CRIMSON PULLS "BONE."

Whether or not the Harvard players expected him to take the ball, as soon as he recovered it, and place it gently upon the ground, and refuse to make the most of his opportunity, we do not know. But we do know that for the moment Harvard pulled a "bone," literally, someone woke up to the situation, but not until the Princeton had run the ball back to within twenty yards of Harvard's goal line.

Harvard's defence for the kicker was at times exceedingly poor. Mahan is not a slow boot. He may seem to be taking his time when he punts, but he is not wasting any, and, with the proper kind of protection, should have plenty of time to get his kicks off in his ordinary way. Yet frequently his kicks were partially blocked. This is a fault which should and must be remedied.

We now come to the question of quarterback. Why it is that the slowest man on the team has always been chosen for a quarter is going to be hard to understand. According to repeated reports the Crimson early in the week. Watson was losing weight and was in bad shape. How on earth did he come back to condition so fast? This, however, is not the point.

WILLCOX A QUICK THINKER.

Harvard has Willcox at its disposal for quarter. He is fast, a quick thinker and usually keeps the team going at top speed. His judgment in the game with Virginia was good. Against Cornell Watson was absolutely unable to get anywhere with his team. It seemed as though he used poor judgment at times, as many of his plays at Cool, one of the strongest men who had ever worn their letter in the Yale game. At that, Dudnum, the only "green" man of the entire quintet, put up as good a game, if not a better one, as any of his four associates.

Harvard Seniors Show Loyalty to the Varsity

In order to demonstrate that Harvard's undergraduates are behind the Harvard eleven in strong fashion, as well as fair, weather, the senior class has written a public letter addressed to Captain Eddie Mahan assuring him and his warriors of their confidence in the varsity. The letter, which appears in today's Crimson, follows:

"To Captain Eddie Mahan—The members of the senior class wish to assure you, if assurance be necessary, that our confidence in you and your team is in no way shaken by the result of last Saturday. We appreciate fully the courage displayed by you and the entire team throughout the game, and we feel that this invincible spirit more than compensates for defeat. You may feel sure that our support will be stronger than ever hereafter.

(Signed) "SENIOR CLASS."

Three Freshies Are at the Infirmary

End Coolidge, Centre Canfield and Left Halfback Dwyer of the Harvard Freshman, injured in the game with Worcester Academy, Saturday, are at the 58illman Infirmary. Coolidge suffered a broken leg, Canfield fractured bones in his ankle and Flower tore a muscle in his thigh.

The game was a particularly rough one and it remains to be seen if the three cubs will be able to do any more football playing this Fall.

As long as the weather holds good—and there is always good baseball weather somewhere under the American flag—we shall hear quite a little about barnstorming trips. Some say that barnstorming is bad for baseball and bad for the players, but there are several points in its favor, to my way of thinking, not counting the lovely change the members of the teams pick up.

Members of the Phillies lost little time in signing barnstorming after the proposed tour to the Coast with the Red Sox fell through. I was interested in the new keystone combination tried out when a picked team of major leaguers went to Swedesboro, N. J. Eddie Collins was at second base and Xavier Rhomberg, Pat Moran's crack young shortstop, was acquitted himself as well in the World's Series, was his side-partner. Eddie and Dave each got $35 for their services, which is a tidy day's pay in the off-season. The other members of the Phillies are barnstorming under a guarantee of $25 per man for each game booked, whether it is called off on account of rain, wet ball or anything else.

Ty Cobb probably makes as much money on these trips as any player in the land. He played in the other day and drew down $350. Ty is a good ball player. He was once fined $500 to play one day in Montreal, but insisted on a percentage of the receipts. The percentage netted him $875.

Some people say these exhibition games cheapen the sport, but personally I think it is a good plan to show the residents of the smaller cities and towns the big league artists of baseball. These folk always read the box scores of the big games during the season and they like to see the players about whom they have read so much in action.

Speaking of the interest taken in baseball outside of the big cities, one of the Red Sox players told me the other day a story that he had heard about one of the games at Penny Park last Summer. A man in the grandstand had brought his son of twelve to the game. The little fellow followed the work of the players with great interest, for he had been reading about them every day. Somebody lifted a fly to Speaker, which Tris caught with his usual grace.

"Look, Pa, he caught it," exclaimed the lad.

"Sure he caught it," growled the parent.

"Down in Brockton they don't always catch them," retorted the youth, justifying his enthusiasm.

They tell me that the fact that $2,000 persons saw one of the Boston games in the World's Series is not a record and that 100,000 saw a recent game in Cleveland, where the amateur ball games have such a big following. The diamond is located in a valley, surrounded by three hills, which form natural grand stands and "bleachers." That crowd was probably bigger than the total attendance at the Cleveland (American Association) Park all season.

BREAKS NOSE BUT SCORES FOR YALE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25.—Gloom overshadows Yale's gridiron today, the points of sorrow in black being where students are gathered to discuss Saturday's game. Thus far, no one has answered the riddle as to what the outcome of the football situation will be.

The Princeton game is only three weeks away, while next Saturday Yale will meet the strong Carlisle team, which will come to New Haven fresh from a 167-to-0 victory over Pennsylvania. There will be no practice scrimmage, but a policy at present, but several graduates are expected to appear this week to help the work. The football squad will not be allowed to take it easy, as the Blue coaches have their backs to the wall and are going ahead to fight out the question of evolving a real football team.

The coaches do not expect to make any changes in the varsity lineup for the immediate future, excepting those due to injuries. Mal Scovil, whose stellar work at fullback was a feature of Saturday's game, had his nose broken in the first part of the contest. He was taken out, but later sent in again and he made Yale's only touchdown.

"Chief" Sheldon and Von Hill sustained shoulder injuries. Sheldon's hurt is the more serious, but it is impossible to tell how long he will be kept out of the game. Von Hillebridge, who was put out of the play in the Lehigh game and who has since suffered minor injuries, is expected to return this week.

There probably will be a shift in the backfield, as Captain Aleck Wilcox, who played left halfback Saturday, failed to make a good showing.

Boston League Schedule Issued

The Amateur Boston Pin League, the last of the big bowling organizations to swing into line, will begin activities tonight, when six of the eight teams will toe the foul line.

The schedule includes a series of twenty-one matches for each team. The dates:

October 25—C.P.Y.C. at Colonial; Dorchester at W. Y. C.; Wilmot at A. B. C.; October 26—City at Oxford.

B. C. OPENS NEW FIELD SATURDAY

Boston College's new athletic field at University Heights will be dedicated next Saturday. Holy Cross gets the plum and the game bids fair attracting a crowd of unusually massive proportions, as Boston College's alumni are out to make the opening a big success.

The new field, on which more than $10,000 has been expended, is in the rear of the main recitation building and the new faculty residence which is nearing completion. These buildings are to form the centre of the proposed group of new buildings.

Cardinal O'Connell, with other church dignitaries, will grace the exercises that mark the dedication, Mayor Curley and others prominent in political and social life are expected to attend. The Very Rev. Charles W. Lyons, S. J., will deliver the dedicatory oration.

Among the interesting ceremonies will be the march of the entire student body and alumni preceded by a band. Each of the present classes will present some special feature of entertainment which will be all the more interesting because it will be kept a secret until the dedication.

BREEZY BOXING BITS

Phil Powers has displayed every right to become the official referee of the Atlas A. A. and the club's officials should back him up, as long as he is pleasing, and not permit visiting fight managers to object to him and have New York officials imported.

Tomorrow night's prelims at the Atlas A. A. may, or may not, prove especially spicy. In the semi-windup Harry Carlson and Johnny Emery get together. They are former star amateurs and bid fair making good as pros.

Barney Snyder of Roxbury and "Kid" Thomas of Lawrence and "Cy" Goodwin and Eddie Flynn of Lynn clash in the six-round skirmishes. They are four fair boys and seem well matched.

Charlie Baker, manager of Johnny Harvey, the New York lightweight, who gave a splendid account of himself in his twelve-round fight with Charley White, the classy Chicagoan, at the Atlas A. A. last Tuesday night, writes the AMERICAN thusly: "I think that Harvey gained enough points in the first eight rounds to offset the points gained by White in the last four."

Baker adds that Harvey is a legitimate 135 pounder and that he will not be a big bundle Johnny can make the notch any time he is called upon. Harvey took the White match on three days' notice, states his handler, which is the reason he did not weigh in.

From New Orleans comes word that Jess Willard and Frank Moran are almost bound to be seen in action before Jimmy Dougherty's club some time in November. If so that means that the twenty-round route will be reversed and the set-to prove a legitimate championship one.

Les Darcy, the Australian middleweight, has again proved his class Saturday, when he got the award over Jimmy Clabby. D'Arcy is said to have run up a distinct edge in the twenty rounds. It looks as if Eddie Moriarty will be Les' next opponent.

"Kid" Williams, the king of the bantams, boxes Young Pal Moore in Memphis, Thursday night. The distance is ten rounds.

Cornell Leader Not Hurt; Team Welcomed Home

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Cornell's victorious eleven was the recipient of an ovation when it returned to the university campus Monday. After speeches and singing at the station the student body, headed by Chalif Band, escorted the warriors to the training table.

When Captain Barrett stepped out on the platform he held aloft the Intercollegiate Cup. "Some day you we would bring the football home and here it is," he enthusiastically declared.

Barrett's neck is a bit stiff. Otherwise, he is none the worse for his collision with Captain Mahan of the Crimson, which rendered him unconscious and forced him to leave the game.

All the other Cornell players are in tip-top trim. One and all, likewise the coaches, praise Harvard for the cleanness of his play.

Brown Will Referee Ritchie-Dundee Go

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The State Athletic Commission announces the appointment of William Brown as referee in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when Willie Ritchie and Johnny Dundee meet in the main bout.

Although it is the intention of the State Athletic Commission to vary its choice when called upon to name referees. Commissioners Dixon and Weeks decided to appoint Brown because of their approval of the way of his work in the Coffey-Moran bout last Tuesday night.

Ruth Loses $500 Sparkler.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—In addition to buying a fine, costly medalsin sack, "Babe" Ruth, the Red Sox's massive southpaw, invested $500 of his World's Series earnings in a diamond ring. While playing for St. Mary's Industrial School Saturday, "Babe" entrusted the care of his "rock" to one of the students. In the meantime, in pushing the crowd back the brother lost the ring.

Correy and Walker Score.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—Frank Correy and Gordon Walker, the Australian cyclists, furnished a big surprise when they won the fifty-kilometer team race for professionals at the Velodrome. Seven crack teams competed.

MATTY AND HANS DON'T INTEND QUITTING

By SAM CRANE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—Christie Mathewson, together with that other glorious old veteran, John Henry Wagner, of Pittsburgh, will be seen on the diamond next year; in fact, there is no chance at all that either will retire unless by reason of physical disability, and neither is going into the discard on that account.

Why, instead of our friend Hans crying quits at forty-two, he is seriously thinking of signing his "John" to a long-term contract that might carry him along as a Pirate until he reaches the half-century mark in youth.

Magee can't see colts.

Sherwood Magee of the Braves, who is both shrewd and witty, is authority for this statement. Says Sherwood:

"If they do not get any better youngsters than they are getting now, us old fellows will be able to stick in the game until we are sixty."

Wagner quoted this owner's defi when he was asked if he would continue to convert on the diamond, as there are hopes of the bow-legged Pittsburgher holding his prominence in baseball for many years to come, and, believe me, he will be just as popular at fifty as he is now.

Matty is only thirty-six and always conserved his good right arm and athletic ability. The reason why he fell off in his pitching the past season has been definitely settled by a recent examination that went through by a prominent nerve specialist.

Matty worked on pluck.

The one pitcher was troubled with neuritis nearly the entire season, and the examining physician announced that it was a wonder that Matty was able to use his arm at all and that he must have pitched with pain whenever he pitched.

Matty bore his pain like a stoic, and never having been troubled before by any similar ailment, like a big, strong athletes feel, he imagined the difficulty would right itself and "blow away."

He was not himself down in Martin in Mississippi, where he was to be seen at other exercises, did much less pitching than he usually does at the training camp.

WELSH'S CROWN SOUGHT BY LEWIS AND MANDOT

If Freddie Welsh is to be dethroned as king of the lightweights before he goes into retirement, which will be July 4, providing the Britisher makes good his recent announcement, either Ted (Kid) Lewis, likewise a Londoner, or Joe Mandot, Southland's premier entrant in the division, will probably land in first place among the 135-pounders.

Mandot is as good as matched with Welsh for a twenty-round mass in New Orleans. Decisions are rendered in the Crescent City, hence if Joe does go on with Freddie down there and is slipped the big official verdict the lightweight title will be returned to America's keeping.

Lewis, too, is carded to get an engagement with Welsh before the Winter is very advanced. This is a match that is far too good to be allowed to go by the boards. No boxer in any division is working as regularly as Lewis. Nor is any ringster giving better satisfaction.

Lewis a live wire.

Ted is the possessor of every attribute needed to make up the successful scrapper. The Britisher is as fast as a comet; a wonder on his pins, knows how to mix and can mix, and is easily the most scientific boxer the Queensberry game has had since Abe Attell, the former monarch of the featherweights, dropped out of it.

Lewis comes under the head of ring freaks. Not only can he do 135 pounds without any trouble, but most of the time he goes on with welterweights. Nor has he been bested in his thirty or more American appearances. At the Atlas A. A. Ted got two verdicts over Jack Britton, though in their first setto the big bulk of the "sports" present figured that Britton was at least entitled to a draw; in fact, there were some shrewd judges who were positive Jack was in front at the end of the twelfth frame.

In New York Lewis was the popular pick over Charley White, the hardhitting Chicago lightweight, among a host of other good boys. Ted has likewise batted at a 1.000 clip in Philadelphia, Buffalo and the other towns he has operated in. There's no discounting the class or ability of Ted English phenom, and he's the almost unanimous choice of Boston's fistic followers to refer to as Welsh's successor as commander of the 135-pound division.

Mandot a tipping foe.

Lewis makes his fourth Boston appearance at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night. His opponent will be Joe Mandot, who the writer stated at the outset would become the next lightweight champion providing said Lewis does not beat him in the ring and providing, of course, Welsh tosses it off.

Mandot, the same as Lewis, is a combination flighter-boxer. His recent bouts indicate that he is now at the top of his form, as among his late conquests is a victory over Johnny Dundee, the speedy New York boxer.

Mandot gained his triumph over Dundee in a fashion that left no decision was hung up, the bulk of the Metropolis critics scribes agreeing Joe as having outbustled and outfought Dundee and fairly entitled to the award. The mere fact that the latter was named Walsh is bringing Mandot to Boston to clash in a return affair with Lewis, a ringster who seems invincible right now, shows what the western manager thinks of his charge.

Mandot has been getting his share of the choice dates in Milwaukee and New Orleans the past two Winters and there are the two fight cities where the big gates are hung up.

Walsh could show the French boy in New York, Philadelphia and sundry other spots without him standing a chance of losing any of his lustre, unless, of course, suffering a knockout.

Boy should draw well.

In bringing his charge to Boston for a twelve-round battle with Lewis, with a referee decision coming at the close, Walsh proves that he is of the opinion that Mandot is every bit as classy as Lewis, and that it is at least even money that Joe receives the award. All in all, the Lewis-Mandot bout looms up as a royal good one on paper and the indications are that the Arena will house one of its banner crowds of the season.

Phil Powers has finally been named the official referee of the Atlas A. A. The appointment has been a long time coming, as truth it is that the native son fairly won the post three months ago. His work in the semi-windup events, as well as in the several windup numbers he handled, was O. K. in every particular. Nevertheless, the Atlas A. A. continued importing New York referees.

One B. Roche was an awful frost; a joke. Charley White did good enough work, but we doubt if he has a thing on Powers. "Said Charley" picked the right boy in last week's White-Harvey mess, regardless of what fully half the house thought. He's the one New Yorker of Chairman Phil's array to be officially clear through. Hence, the Atlas A. A. should insist upon running its own game.

Kramer Again Shows Way to Al Goullet

NEWARK, Oct. 25.—Just to show his superiority from every angle as a match maker, Promoter L. Kramer, the Yankee champion rassling wizard, closed the season's series of Brassard races at the Velodrome by defeating Alfred Goullet, his Australian rival, at one mile.

Gilman Not Badly Hurt.

Left Tackle Gilman of the Harvard varsity, knocked out in Saturday's game with Cornell, is back at the training table. His ankle was only slightly turned and he will probably be back in practice by Wednesday or Thursday.

59 Baseball Deaths During 1915 Season

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Fifty-nine deaths were attributed to baseball during the 1915 season. Thirty-eight of the fatalities were caused by being hit on the head by batted balls. Injuries decreased slightly over the preceding year, 7 per cent. of the players having been injured during the season.

YANKEE OWNERS PLAN CANNING VETERANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Captain T. L. Huston, who bought the Yankees last Winter, are not any too tickled with their bargain. Nevertheless, they're going right ahead to turn their liability into an asset.

Probably the most elaborate scouting system in baseball has been operated by the Yankees, and the new owners have set out to build up a ball club out of good youngsters to replace the inferior veterans they bought.

"Are you satisfied with Donovan as a manager?" Colonel Ruppert and Captain Huston were asked in the Yankee offices.

"We are," Colonel Ruppert replied firmly. "He has done as well with that mediocre team as any one else could have done. Next season, though, we will give him better material, and we confidently expect better results."

HUSTON TALKS PLAINLY.

Captain Huston admitted that he was not entirely satisfied when he found out what he and his partner had bought.

"We knew we were not getting a first class ball team in the Yankees," he said, "and we fully expected to have to wait some time before we had a pennant winner, but"—he repeated the word, emphasizing it—"but we were told that the pitching staff equalled that of any other team in the American League, and particular stress was laid upon the ability of several players.

"It didn't take us long, though," he continued, "to learn that the pitchers were the weakest part of the outfit and that several of the alleged stars were stars in name only."

"For instance?" he was asked.

"Well, McHale, Cole, Keating, Warhop and Hoyt. They have been of almost no benefit to us. All combined won only seventeen games, or but quite four each. Sweeney, the catcher, and Cree, outfielder, were sore disappointments, and several others did not come up to expectations. You ask what was the matter with the Yankees? How could the Yankees have other than a bad season when five pitchers, one catcher and one outfielder proved dismal failures, to say nothing of other deficiencies."

"WILD BILL" DID WELL.

"Donovan," said Colonel Ruppert, "did well to finish fifth. He had poor pitching, lost catching, an outfield that couldn't field and an infield that didn't hit up to expectations."

"Ban Johnson," said Captain Huston, "has worked hard to help us, but he has been able to do little. We had a chance to buy Eddie Murphy from the Athletics, but Donovan did not think Murphy would strengthen the club.

"We could have bought Frank Baker, but only at a price higher than ever was asked for any other player, and we rejected the offer as being out of all reason. Against good advice we offered a high price for Baker, but it wasn't enough. We were given no chance to buy Barry, Jackson or James, good players who were sold to other American League clubs.

"We have concluded that the only way to build up a strong team is to secure youngsters from the minors and develop them ourselves, and we are acting along those lines.

SOME YANKEE MISFITS.

"Long term contracts at excessive figures have hurt the club, and a good many players who are signed up and who will draw large salaries will not be in Yankee uniforms next year."

"Will you give names?" he was asked.

"Sweeney, Cree, Brown, Daley, Keating, McHale, Warhop, Cottrell and one or two others will not be with us next year. To such men as Fisher and Caldwell, however, whose ability has not been impaired by long term contracts, it is a pleasure to pay large salaries. I wish we had more like them."

Among the new pitchers signed by the Yankees for next year are Mogridge, Piercy, Russell, Tipple, Hodgkiss, Brady, Slade, Rose and Vance—as fine a bunch of youngsters as has been gathered by any major league team. Alexander and Walters are the new catchers; Aragon and Chile, infielders, and the new outfielders are Brown, Layden, Miller, Hendryx and Gilhooley.

Fed Prexy Finally Issues Right Dope

President Gilmore of the Federal League, in verifying the report that the independent body would have a club in New York in 1915 and play ten-cent ball, stated, after reviewing the size of the investment, the cost of maintenance, etc., etc., "To me it is no risk at all."

Gilmore hit the nail squarely on the needle. True, it's no risk to him, but surely Ward, Ball, Sinclair, Weeghman et al. have been asked to go against a lot of doubtful ventures. As a Western writer aptly remarks: "Gilmore is in the position of the receiver of a wrecked railroad. He gets his every month, whether or not the stockholders ever collect anything."

Doane, Tufts Star, Is Out for Season

Dinger Doane, Tufts' star fullback and pet of the line-plunging bad big ankle fractured in Saturday's game with Boston College, is out for the season, the coaches fear. Nellie looms up as Doane's most promising successor, and, while he is a plucky warrior, Dinger is bound to be missed in the big games.

Thorndike is to be kept at centre. His passing was a distinct feature of the battle with B. C.

ELI CREW NAMED FOR NOV. 12 RACE

By International News Service.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 25.—As the result of the trial races in the harbor Saturday evening Coach Nickalls announced today the crew which will probably row against Columbia November 12. The trials Saturday were rowed by moonlight because of the rough water during the day, and were interrupted by the crossing of a steam tug. The races were started again and finally finished.

In the trials Captain Seth Low and Cord Meyer each showed himself to be a capable stroke and today Low will start there with the varsity. He will remain in his seat for the Columbia race unless a change seems advisable to balance the boat.

At No. 7 Coombs and Harriman showed well. With Meter at stroke, Edward Harriman would be at No. 7, but with Low there the position will be filled by Coombe. Ex-Captain Sturtevant will be in his old position at No. 5, while Kosinsky could row either No. 4 or No. 6, and, for the present, will row in the former place, taking Jim Sheridan's seat, as the latter is playing football.

Meyer will row at No. 6. New men will make up the other end of the boat. No. 3 will be filled by Atkins and No. 2 by Gilfillan. Harriman will be at bow, with Low at stroke, and, should Low later go further up in the boat Harriman will go to No. 7. Allan McLane will be coxswain, as the crew that will race Columbia will have three veteran oarsmen and a veteran coxswain.

Drops a Goal from Field at 63 Yards

Mark Payne, halfback on the Dakota, Wesleyan eleven and the new holder of the drop kick record in intercollegiate football. In the game with Northern Normal School a week ago Saturday, Payne dropped a goal from the field while standing on the enemy's 63-yard line, thereby scoring the longest drop kick in football's history.

Previous to this feat the record drop kick was that of sixty-two yards, achieved by Fat J. O'Dea of Wisconsin, against Northeastern at Evanston, Ill., November 25, 1895. This kick is only exceeded by one other kick, a place kick, by J. T. Haxall, of Princeton, against Yale, November 30, 1882, at New York, for sixty-five yards.

Big Cross-Country Is Set for Nov. 20

The eighth annual cross-country run of the I. C. A. A. A. A. will be held at Franklin Park Saturday, November 20, at 11 a. m. The course will start east of the Refectory and will be run entirely within the park, the finish being almost a full half mile from the start, on the Greeting, north of the columns. The distance of the event is six miles.

The fourth annual cross-country run of the New England I. C. A. A. A. will be held Saturday, November 13, at 11 a. m. At the same place. The course being similar but the distance one mile less through the omission of a "loop."

Aberg and Zbyszko, Square Off Tonight

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Alex Aberg, the world's Graeco-Roman wrestler, and Waldek Zbyszko, the Polish herculeas, are fit and ready for their encounter tonight at Madison Square Garden.

There is little difference in the makeup of the two wrestlers as regards height and weight. Aberg is more experienced than his opponent, who has only been wrestling four years. Only a few months ago Aberg and Zbyszko wrestled to a draw.

Squad Too Cocky; Otherwise Rush Has No Worries

PRINCETON, Oct. 25.—According to Head Coach "Speedy" Rush, the Princeton team is facing its hardest week of the season this week. There will be no let-up in the practice and the whole squad will scrimmage this afternoon, with the possible exception of one or two of the men who made the best showing against Dartmouth on Saturday.

These men will be back on the job tomorrow, and from then on to the Harvard game, Rush will push his men to the limit. Right now the greatest fault that Rush has to contend with is over-confidence.

The coach believes that this is one of the things that has to be prepared for, just the same as a defence has to be provided for forward passes, and so this week he means to take out any overconfidence that may lurk in the eleven, as a result of its recent victories.

The team came through the hard Dartmouth game in good condition. Most of the men showed up at chapel yesterday morning and will be on hand when Rush calls the roll tomorrow.

HILL-GOULLET MAY RIDE HERE

After all, Boston is to have its annual six-day bicycle race. The Arena will again be the scene of the big struggle and a field of star American and European riders will be dispatched on their long journey on Monday afternoon, November 2. There will be the usual preliminary battles of sprint and paced races on the Saturday night preceding the big race.

Promoters Nat Butler and Alec McLean announce that twelve of the world's foremost teams have already sent in their signed contracts. Al Goullet and Freddie Hill, the 1914 winning combination, are practically sure starters, though thus far they have not mailed in their entries. However, as the event was only clinched Saturday, Goullet and Hill have scarcely had time to receive official notification that the race is on.

The National Cycling Association will supervise the building of the new oval, which bids fair proving the fastest ever constructed in New England.

Penn State Fires Out "Bear" Scare

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 25.—Penn State's eleven, with a record of six successive victories, and the owners of 195 points against the opposition's fifteen, came out of the West Virginia Wesleyan game in good shape and the coaches are bent upon duplicating Cornell's feat of piling against Harvard in next Saturday's battle in Cambridge.

Westminster, Lebanon Valley, Pennsylvania, Gettysburg and West Virginia are Penn State's victims this Fall. Penney, the one big foe the home member has met, was vanquished 13 to 3. Head Coach Harlow and Captain Woods are dissatisfied over Saturday's game, claiming that their charges are not going nearly as swiftly as before the game with the Red and Blue.

However, among the student body this is taken as "bunk" talk and it is confidently thought that Penn State will cover itself with glory in the Harvard battle.

B. I. R. A. Called Upon to Buy Boats

The Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association will hold a meeting at the B. A. A. tomorrow night to discuss ways and means to raise the $1,800 needed with which to buy boats. Heretofore, the B. A. A. has rigged out the oarsmen, but it announces that it will not do so any longer.

President Joseph M. Hunt of the B. I. R. A. states that it will require fully $1,800 to buy the necessary boats and he fears the organization will experience trouble galore in raising that amount.

What Happened to Jane

Jane Foresees a Happy Time and Thinks Her Parents Will Love Ned

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XIV.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

"I SHALL try to make an opportunity to tell your father before I leave this evening," Ned Sanderson was saying as he and Jane strolled down the side of Collins Mountain—their favorite walk. "It's my duty—and besides," —with a tremulous laugh—"I am so happy that I wish I could let all the world know about it."

"Oh!" the girl ejaculated. "I am afraid to let anybody know."

"Afraid!" her companion echoed. "What are you afraid of, darling?"

"I don't know," she acknowledged. "Only—this has been the happiest week of my life and I wish it could last forever. Our secret is all ours now—but when we share it with anybody else it will never be the same again."

"Silly child," Sanderson chided. "You know that nothing can ever change our love for each other. Come," taking her hand in his, "and sit down here on this big rock and let's watch the sunset for the last time during my vacation."

Even he sighed as he spoke the words. The sunset hour is always the saddest of the day, and tonight these two could not forget that before the rising of tomorrow's sun the man would be back in the city and the girl must begin the waiting that is so often woman's lot.

"The waiting will not be so hard," she said after a while, "for I shall know that you are thinking of me all the time, and then, too, I shall have my own work to do."

"I wish you did not have to work," the man declared. "I wish I could just whisk you now and marry you right out of hand. But I know I have no right to do this until I am making a little more money than I am now. It would not be fair to you, sweet. But, by the first of the year I ought to get a raise—and by a year from now I shall take you away with me."

NED PLEADS WITH JANE TO RISE TO THE OCCASION

"Perhaps so," Jane said.

"Of course so!" Ned corrected. "Dear, you believe in the best."

"But," the girl faltered, "I am so afraid of what father will say."

Edward Sanderson made an impatient movement. He had tried in vain to banish this fear from Jane's mind, and he could not understand it.

"See here," he said, banteringly, "you have made a man of straw and have let yourself be frightened by it. Lord knows I'm not good enough for you, yet your father cannot object to my character, for I am a decent chap, as all events. And I have a pastor and some other friends who will vouch for me.

"I am not rich, but I have a steady position and have had one raise in salary this year and am promised another in January. Your father cannot know how dearly I love you—for I alone can know that—but he can be sure that I will do all that I can to make you happy. So, darling, while he will hate to give you up—and I can't blame him—what ground can he have for refusing to do so?"

"I—I—don't know," Jane faltered —"only I think he has other plans for me."

The young man laughed with the confidence of youth and love. "Then he'll have to change them—that's all!" he declared. "And," becoming serious again, "even his disapproval could not keep you from me—could it, Jane?"

"No, no—it couldn't!" she assured him.

They sat silent, watching the glory fade in the west. His arm was about her and her head rested on his shoulder. Neither spoke for a long time. At last the girl drew a breath of mingled happiness and regret.

"It has been perfect!" she murmured. "And now we must go down into the valley. There are shadows there" she pointed down to the village on the plain below—"but up here it's all light."

"But even in the shadows of separation we will be together in heart, dearest," he whispered, kissing her.

On the way down the mountain they talked of the life that stretched before them, of how Jane would teach this Winter, always with visions of what next Winter would mean to her; of how the man in the busy city would toil, always saving for her, always planning for their life together.

"I am glad you are willing to keep our secret from everybody except father and mother," Jane said. "It will make it easier for me here in this little village."

HE LEAVES THE WHOLE MATTER TO HIS FIANCEE

"I know it," he agreed, "and that is why I consented to do it. I leave all that entirely to you. It is your privilege, you know, to announce or withhold the news of our engagement."

"The only real cloud on the future is that I must leave father and mother here alone," Jane remarked as they came in sight of the old home. In the gathering dusk the lights shone out of the lower windows as if peering through the night for her.

"They will come to us often, sweetheart," her lover reminded her. "And you shall come out here to see them whenever you want to. The city is not far away, remember. If it were, I do not think that I could stand it. But now, when I go away tonight, I shall know that in two or three weeks more I shall be able to run out and spend a Sunday in Milton."

"If all goes well perhaps you will stay at our house—won't you?" the girl asked as this thought occurred to her for the first time. "We have lots of room—and we'd love to have you with us."

That would have to be as your people thought best," Ned replied. "If they propose it—and if you do not think it will make the neighbors suspect our engagement—well and good. Otherwise, the hotel is always there."

"Oh, I am sure father and mother will insist on your coming to us," Jane said, her mood of dread leaving her suddenly as she recollected her parents' devotion to her. "I was silly to be so nervous, Ned—for I know that father and mother cannot help loving you. Who could help it" she supplemented naively.

Such Is Love

"Blue-Eyed Fay, Love Me or I Die"
"Black-Eyed Fay, Love Me or You Die"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

WHAT do you think of this, brown and black eyes? Rolling softly along the avenue, in the bite of the Autumn air, with the smoke (far come) from burning leaves in the remote woods dropping a gauzy blue curtain between street and street, between far crowd and near one, between rearing stone structure and softly-purple park trees, we stopped at the crossing—and next to us there drew up, almost touching hands, a car with two girls snuggled close in the tonneau. One had hair like ripe wheat and heavenly skyey eyes—yellow and blue! And one had hair like a thunder-cloud and soft black eyes—very soft. And said a man, looking at the yellow rose by the black-eyed Susan, "BLUE EYES SAY 'LOVE ME OR I DIE!' BLACK EYES SAY 'LOVE ME OR I KILL YOU!'"

"Blue eyes are forget-me-nots! Blue eyes plead and are kind. Blue eyes are gentle and never strike. Blue eyes take hurts and fold them over the dew of their hearts. Blue eyes are the low-voiced flower by the road that some people never hear.

"BLACK eyes are swamp flowers, deadly and lovely. Black eyes conjure and call. Black eyes are black stones under the sea, so cold, yet softly-seeming, but reefs to wreck yourself upon. Black eyes are wounded, and their wound brings lightning instead of dew. Black eyes are storm-clouds that the man in the road cannot fail to see. Blue eyes say 'Love me or I die!' Black eyes say 'Love me or You die!'"

If that be so—I love the forget-me-not, with the dim voice of the road that pleads to grace your coat —and I adore the storm-cloud that threatens you with flight unless if you hide your face from it!

If a Dead Star Hit the World

Neither the Earth Nor Solar System Immune from Destruction

By GARRET P. SERVISS.

EVERYBODY knows by heart the ominous passages of Scripture in which "wars and rumors of wars" and other violent upheavals in human affairs are significantly connected with the final catastrophe which is to close the present "dispensation" for mankind. There is, then, no cause for wonder in the fact that great numbers of people are inquiring with real, if partly concealed uneasiness, whether the recent unprecedented loosing of the spirit of war may not mark the opening hour of the awful "Day of Jehovah," said, by the famous hymn, to have been predicted by David and the Sibyl.

This leads at once to the question what science has to say about the possibility of an "end of the world." There has survived, from some time in the last century, the notion that astronomers had proved with mathematical certitude, that earth and the solar system are immortal. In truth, however, if they have proved anything on this subject it is that neither the earth nor the solar system, of which the earth is a member, is immune from destruction.

As far as physical possibilities go, science knows no reason why the world may not receive its command in such a manner that the accompanying phenomena would bear astonishing resemblance to the dreadful scenes depicted in the biblical prophecies.

A LONG TIME.

Some of the ways in which science foresees that the earth may close its career as a habitable globe require an enormous lapse of time, and it may be confidently averred that the crisis in such cases could not arrive for many millions of years. For instance, the sun is doomed to ultimate extinction. In from five to ten million years it will no longer send enough radiant energy to the earth to keep life going here and thus the earth must slowly freeze.

But this gradual process of extinction was not what the scriptural writers had before their imaginations, and it is not what nervous people have in mind when they talk of the end of the world. The elements of suddenness and violence are essential parts of the predicted, and, for many minds, dreaded and half-expected finish.

Here, again, science is accommodating. Two ways may be mentioned in which the earth may make a tragic exit without violating any "law" recognized by science. First, it may be run down by a "dead star." Astronomical collisions, once regarded as mere speculative possibilities, are known to occur, and sometimes on a stupendous scale. The most reasonable explanation that has been found for the occasional appearance of new stars is that previously invisible bodies of enormous mass have come into violent collision in the depths of space and, through the transformation of their kinetic energy into heat, have been largely if not wholly, turned into incandescent gas and vapors.

PLENTY OF EVIDENCE

The evidence is overwhelming that celestial space contains great numbers of dark bodies which once, probably glowed as stars, or suns and that they, like the visible stars, such as our sun, are speeding in various directions with velocities amounting to many miles, and sometimes to hundreds of miles per second.

If such a mass should plunge into the solar system the disastrous consequences-are easy to foresee. A body of that kind could not be seen until it had got near enough to reveal itself by the sunlight reflected from its surface, and after it had reached that degree of proximity only a few years could elapse before its blow would fall. Its mere passage through the solar system, even if it missed hitting anything, would be disastrous.

Cool-headed persons might find some distraction in watching its approach and calculating in advance the moment of the crisis. It might become visible with telescopes when it is yet 15,000,000 miles distant. But if its speed only equalled that of the sun, which is not a very fast traveling star, it would be upon us in seventy-five years, and if it traveled with the speed of the star 1850 Groombridge it would position upon us in about five years after the astronomers had caught their first view and warned the world of its danger.

ANOTHER WAY

Another way in which the earth, as far as concerns life on its surface, might come to a quick end is through the consequences of its internal cooling and shrinkage. The moon offers a possible warning here. Its entire surface is a volcanic wreck. Evidently there came a time in its history when the internal forces broke up its whole crust or overflowed it with vast floods of lava. It may be that when a planet arrives at a certain critical stage in its cooling the shrinkage of its crust produces a tremendous outbreak of volcanic force and an upwelling of molten rock formed by enormous local pressures.

Changes of this kind, due to gradually increasing strain, are apt to be sudden and catastrophal. If such a disaster should happen to the earth its inhabitants would perish with their eyes fixed upon a scene of chaos as wild and awful as any depiction of the prophets of calamity.

To Meet All Cases

"What a life!" sighed the agent for the dead-and-dry encyclopedia, as he turned in at the gate of a country cottage. But his natural qualities soon asserted themselves as he espied a probable buyer.

"Warm day, sir," he said affably to the old boy busying himself with the fowls.

A grunt was his only answer.

"I've something here that will interest you and your good lady," he persisted unabashed, displaying a copy of the encyclopedia.

"Ain't got no good lady, and don't read," crustily observed the O. B.

"But if you have children, this"——

"And there ain't no children, either. No one here but me and the cat."

"Well, then," persisted the agent desperately, "this is just the book you're looking for. Don't you ever want to throw something really substantial at the cat?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T LEAVE HOME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would it be right for a girl of sixteen years of age who is anxious to become a "moving picture actress" to leave home? I have a happy home, but my parents object to me being an actress.

CONSTANT READER.

DON'T for one minute contemplate leaving a happy home because you are suffering from that common complaint of youth, namely, being stage struck. Becoming a moving picture actress isn't just a matter of wanting to become one—you have to get a position first and the fields are over-crowded. Listen to your parents, stay quietly at home and wait until you are older and wiser before you try to go out into the world on your own resources.

BE VERY CAREFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Am a girl of twenty-two, and met a man of thirty-six at a Summer resort while on my vacation. I have been out with him several times. I have a girl friend who lives near him, and she tells me he is married. I met him not long ago and I asked him. He told me he was married, but expected to leave his wife. Now, Miss Fairfax, I love this man, and I know my love is returned. He has asked me to marry him, but I say him at times. I feel that my wife he'll surely do the same to the second.

M. A. E.

BECAUSE a man has been unhappy with his first wife is no sign that a change he makes the second will be a failure. There would be no reason why you should not become engaged to and marry this man if he were divorced, but since he is only contemplating leaving his wife, he is still, in the eyes of the law and of society, her husband, and you have no right to go about with him.

The Court's Retort

Here is a lawyer story. We are told that a man was charged with picking a pocket the other day, and that when arraigned he pleaded "guilty." The case went to the jury however, and the verdict was "Not guilty." And the court spoke as follows:

"You don't leave this court without a stain on your character. By your own confession you are a thief. By the verdict of the jury, you are a liar."

Schoolroom Gems

LET the doubters deny that there is humor in the school room—read these and laugh. They were found in recent examination papers of youthful aspirants to educational distinction:

"Horse-power is the distance one horse can carry a pound of water in one hour." "The earth is an ablative tabloid." "To kill a butterfly you pinch its horax." "The Pope always lives in a Vacuum."

Also these:

"A deacon is the lowest form of a Christian," and a "short circuit is a preacher on the circus who is short."

One child stated that Tennyson wrote a poem called "Ulysses Engraved," and added the startling news that "Queen Elizabeth rode a white horse into Coventry with nothing on, and Raleigh offered her his cloak."

An aspirant descreed a ruminating animal as one "that chews its own cubs." A choice plum is the defining of the Zodiac as "The Zoo of the sky where all the animals go after they are dead."

A candidate described George Washington as "remarkable for telling the biggest lie," while one is inclined to agree with the cadet who said, "The process of digestion begins in the kitchen." "How would you keep a log?" elicited the answer, "Clean."

Ingenuity in parrying questions offers a field for honor in itself. "Where would you start from in order to visit New York, Moscow, Port Said and Bombay?" "Here," was the concise reply.

Authors and the Bible

It Has Furnished Many an Effective Title

MANY an author is indebted to the Bible for a title to a novel. Hall Caine makes good use of it with "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," "The Prodigal Son" and "The Scapegoat"; Marie Corelli culls "Wormwood" and "Barrabbas"; Miss Braddon "One Thing Needful" and "Thou Art the Man."

The late Walter Besant got "Children of Gibeon" from the same inexhaustible supply, as well as "The Fourth Generation." The author of "John Halifax, Gentleman" has a novel entitled "A Life for a Life"; John Hocking has one "All Men Are Liars"; Seton Merriman, "The Tents of Kedar"; David Lyall, "The Corner Stone"; E. M. Jamieson, "A House Divided," and "Rita," "A Woman of Samaria."

"Joseph's Coat" is a memorable novel, and so is Marion Crawford's "Whosoever Shall Offend." William Le Queux has a novel called "As We Forgive Them," and Thomas Hardy names another "The Laodicean."

Older readers will recall Wyatt Melville's "Black, but Comely," and William Black's "Daughter of Heth" is a minor classic.

Andrew Balfour has written "Vengeance is Mine,' and Blundelle-Burton's "The House of Bondage" and "The Sword of Gideon" are two fine titles. L. G. Moberly has "In the Balances," Charles Marriott "The House on the Sand," and Mrs. Coulson Kernahan "As Unto Virgin" and "The Graven Image."

Harold Begbie is fond of Biblical titles. Among others are "Tables of Stone" and "In the Hands of the Potter." Richard Bagot uses "The Just and the Unjust," and one of the most popular novels of the day is "The Way of an Eagle."

How many readers can tell just where these titles occur?

Do You Know That--

The world's population is estimated at 1,623,000,000. As the warring kingdoms comprise 945,000,000 people, more than two-thirds of the inhabitants of the globe are concerned in the struggle.

Africa is more appropriately named than many other countries, for the word comes from the Phoenician "afer" meaning "a black man," and the Hebrew "ki" "ka," meaning, land, country.

It is said that a humming bird will attack and kill creatures is no larger than a bumble bee.

The color magenta is named after a battle which was fought in the year of its discovery.

Louis XIV. drank the first cup of coffee made in France. It was then worth $30 a pound.

The word admiral is derived from the word Arabic emir-al-bahr, meaning "lord of the sea."

An Incipient Forger

Some time ago a small boy played truant, and when he went to school the next day he handed the following note to the teacher: "Dear Teacher—Please excuse Thomas for not being at school yesterday, and don't lick him." The boy who played truant with licked him, and the man they threw stones at licked him, and the man whose dog they chased licked him, and the driver whom they teased licked him, and when his father came home and found out he licked him, and he will continue to be licked in the future. Yours, Mary Smith."

After that litter the teacher was merciful and Thomas was permitted to run out and play with no further damage.

In the yard he met a chum. "Say, Billy," he remarked in a careful way, "ain't I lucky?" "Why?" was the quick response of Billy. "Cause the teacher didn't lick ya!" "No," said Thomas, with a smile, "because I can write just like mother!"

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr Edwards, a well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of cases of stomach and bowel ailments. During these years he prescribed Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, mixed with olive oil, naming them after Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their form.

These tablets are purely vegetable and act on the liver and bowels, which causes a normal action, carrying off the waste matter and poisons in the intestinal canal, thus toning the entire system.

If you have a sallow face, pallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, bad breath, nervousness, tired feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you will find one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep up the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.—Advertisement

There is nothing so good for children's skin and scalp troubles as Cadum Ointment.

It is perfectly safe to apply to the tender skin of infants suffering from tetter, rashes, eczema, scaldings, and similar troubles that afflict the little ones, all of which, if not carefully treated, are apt to become chronic and mar a baby's beauty. Instant relief is felt as soon as Cadum Ointment is applied. The itching is stopped at once, and so soothing and healing is the effect of this new compound that infants resume natural sleep immediately. Cadum is good for any skin trouble in adults as well as children. 50c. and 25c a box at druggists.

Anecdotes of the Famous

PROBABLY no animal lover was ever more passionately devoted to dogs than Ouida, the famous novelist. Her grandest grief at the time of her death was that she must leave her "dear dogs."

"Their lives," she wrote to Sir Squire Bancroft, shortly before her death in 1908, "are too short in comparison with their devotion."

In the corner of her garden at the Villa Farinola, in Italy, Ouida had a dogs' cemetery, with costly monuments in marble and granite to her departed pets. It was so like a real graveyard that the Italians were shocked. They considered it irreligious and wasteful, says her biographer, Miss Elizabeth Lee.

As a matter of fact, Ouida was always surrounded by a troop of dogs whom she fed and attended herself, and, knowing her weakness in this direction, she was being constantly deceived by people trying to sell her dogs. In a letter to a friend she related how one man once implored her to take his puppy to save it.

"I told him I didn't want it, didn't wish for it, but he begged so hard and looked so miserable I at last did take it, and gave him some money out of pity. A year and a half afterward he brought me a note against me as owing him thirty francs for a dog! The funny thing was that the poor pup had died in the interim."

A politician who had several times changed his political views and had for the moment embraced those of Lord Charles Beresford, attended a meeting which was addressed by the breezy admiral. At the close of the meeting he went up to the speaker to congratulate him. "Capital speech that of yours, Beresford," he said, with an air of patronage which Lord Charles found it difficult to bear. "Very good indeed! But, you know, you don't look like a statesman." Neither do you look like a weathercock," replied Lord Charles.

Senor Foli, the famous baritone, when singing in opera, spoke with his native city, Cork, had to sing one of his songs from a practice balcony. The stage arrangements were not perfect, and the stage manager, fearing that the supports might not made the balcony strong enough to bear the weight of the big man, told off two assistants to hold it up from behind. The signor was only half way through his song when one man said to the other: "Moike, this Italian is mighty heavy." "Let's drop him, Pat," said Mike, "he's only an Ottalian after all." "Will yez, will yez, ye spalpeens!" said the signor above. "Tare-an-ouns," cried Pat. "But he's an Oirishman! Hould him up for the loife of yez."

PROF. ANDERSON COMES OUT FOR SHAW

A split in the Republican vote on November 2 is indicated in a statement by Professor Frederick Lincoln Anderson, Republican, of Newton Centre, who is professor of New Testament Interpretation at the Newton Theological Institution.

Professor Anderson, although a lifelong Republican, declares that this year he will vote for William Shaw, the Prohibition candidate.

Professor Anderson says:

"Although I entered the Republican primaries for Mr. Cushing, I do not feel on that account under any moral obligation to vote for Mr. McCall; because, to my mind, the evidence is overwhelming that Mr. McCall was nominated by Democratic votes. By this I do not mean to imply that Mr. McCall is personally responsible for that fact.

"I've made up my mind not to vote for Mr. McCall because of his opposition to the anti-sectarian amendment in the primary campaign, and because he has since not come out publicly for it.

"Whatever Mr. McCall's private opinion on the subject may be, the fact remains that the platform of the Republican party shows that the party managers are still opposed to our amendment.

"That party of which Mr. McCall is the candidate must have it proved to them that it cannot elect a Republican Governor until it approves the anti-sectarian amendment.

PROHIBITION MUST COME.

"I've made up my mind to vote for Mr. Shaw because he has the courage to come out publicly in favor of the amendment, and further, because I believe that prohibition must be the ultimate temperance policy of our State and nation.

"There is not the slightest bigotry in the anti-sectarian amendment. It deals equally with all, and its passage would end all sectarian bitterness in this Commonwealth for generations to come.

"I firmly believe that our Democratic friends will soon see that it is really for their highest interests to favor it."

"I'm for Shaw and prohibition every time," declared the Rev. James D. Tillinghast, pastor of the First Universalist Church, Beverly, and a staunch Shaw supporter along the North Shore.

"I believe that Mr. Shaw is the man of the hour. He is sound as a dollar, and a man of highest character. With Mr. Shaw at the helm, this Commonwealth would soon rid herself of the saloon.

"The saloon is its own best argument against itself. Nowhere has it added anything to the value of a community. It is a total loss, and it must go.

"There is no compromise with the liquor interests. Would you try and argue with the fire which is burning your house down? No—just ring in a fire alarm and then try and put out the flames.

"That is why I am appealing to all citizens to vote the Prohibition ticket and elect the only candidate with a real issue, as Governor of this State.

"A vote for Shaw is a vote for Jesus Christ. Never will we have moral action in affairs of State until we have taken away the distorting curse of liquor."

MINISTERS ISSUE LETTER.

Nearly one hundred of the leading ministers of the State have issued a letter urging Mr. Shaw's election.

These ministers represent various denominations all the way from Cape Cod to the Berkshires. They include such men as the Rev. A. Z. Conrad, of the Park Street Congregational Church, Boston, the Rev. George L. Cady, of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Dorchester; the Rev. O. P. Gifford, of Brookline; the Rev. S. L. Jennings, of Grace M. E. Church, Worcester; the Rev. Nicholas Van der Pyl, of the Central Congregational Church, Haverhill; the Rev. Cortland Myers, of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, Boston; the Rev. A. C. Skinner, of St. Paul's Church, Lowell.

Was Orderly for Gen. Joe Hooker

J. A. Buckman of 49 Main St., Avon, Had Indigestion Since the War.

In a recent interview, the Plant Juice Man, who has his headquarters at the Liggett Drug Company's store, corner of Washington and Avon sts., said: "As a strengthener and builder of the system, there is nothing to equal Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic. This wonderful remedy that has taken the whole country by storm, is made from the juices and essences of medicinal plants, gathered from many parts of the world and combined with great skill into the best remedy known for all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys. It purifies the blood, aids digestion, strengthens weak nerves and vitalizes the whole body."

J. A. BUCKMAN

Mr. J. A. Buckman, who resides at No. 49 Main st., Avon, comes out with the following statement of what Plant Juice did for him. Mr. Buckman is one of the Old Guard, and member of Company I, 20th Infantry, who had the honor of serving under Captain Oliver Wendell Holmes and was also orderly for Gen. Joseph Hooker in the Great War of the Rebellion. He says:

"For 7 I have suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble. I had indigestion in the worst form as the result of my hardships during the Civil War, and at times I suffered the most excruciating pain. I had a hard lump in the pit of my stomach which seemed like a ball of lead and pains all over my body; was nervous and restless and never could sleep at night. My stomach was in such bad shape that I could never smoke a cigar or eat any solid food, and I lost 28 pounds. Had a coated tongue, costiveness, dizzy spells and felt weak and miserable. A friend told me about Plant Juice and how it had cured other cases. He got me to and advised me to try it. I did so and after the first dose I felt relieved. I have now taken several bottles and my stomach is in good condition, that I can eat anything of food, liver and kidneys are in good shape and sleep all night through. I can smoke again, have no more dizzy spells or pains, and am glad to state that I can endorse your Plant Juice as a grand medicine for stomach, liver or kidney trouble."—Advertisement.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in the last hour, with railroads showing gains with few exceptions. A number of new industrials were issued. Both lists were below their highest for the day at 2:15 in New York, gains included American Can ¼, U. S. Steel ¾, Central Leather 1¾, American Sugar ¾ and American Smelting 1.

Among declines were: Anaconda ¾, Chino ¾, Inspiration ¾, Studebaker 1⅝, Crucible 1⅝, Bethlehem 15, Baldwin 1, American Loco. ¾, Car & Foundry 1⅞, and Canadian Pacific 1¾.

The Boston market had weakened, and among losses were: Alaska Gold ¼, Butte & Superior ¼, Copper Range ¼, Greene-Cananea 1½, Trinity ¾, and Gulf common ¼.

Gains here included: American Zinc ¼, New Haven 1, North Butte ¾, Isle Royale ¼, American Pneumatic Service common ¼ and preferred ½.

In New York a number of stocks ceased off nearer the close.

PRICES UP AT OPENING.

Stocks opened on a higher level in New York with war industrials the strongest and trading active. The advances ranged as much as 2 points and a recession. This was quickly followed by a rally in which several rails were conspicuous. New Haven, Reading, Erie and Lehigh Valley making good gains. The market was strong during the rest of the morning and firm in the noon hour. The price range of standard issues was narrow. A few industrials had a wide one. Maxwell sold at a record high. In the morning reaction Baldwin, Crucible and Studebaker were among issues to recede the most. There was a disposition to take profits quickly. The early advance was due mostly to buying orders which accumulated over night. Bonds were irregular. After these orders were executed offerings increased in volume. Profession al sentiment continued bearish, but was offset by optimism on the part of the public. The latter took small interest in the market, but displayed a good deal of restraint in commitments. U. S. bonds declined on a small advance, but ruled lower later. It was not heavily traded in. There is up much doubt as to what directors will do in regard to its common dividend that speculators are in a hesitating mood, awaiting further stronger pressure.

There was nothing sensational about the market. Rails were quiet as a class, hard coolers being the most active. But the strength of the whole group was encouraging to conservatives. Foreign exchange is still weak, demand sterling at New York, 4.64. According to one statement this market has been "forced to look to foreign liquidation of American stocks, a London authority says: "Banks here have undoubtedly been purchasing American securities of all kinds for shipment to London." Compared with last year, New York exports increased $26,099,838 last week and imports increased $236,372.

TRADING ACTIVE IN BOSTON.

The Boston market ranged a little higher at the opening and was active during the morning, but did not show as much strength as New York, the regularity was the rule. American Zinc was in strong demand and opened at its highest price, 9¾. Utah Copper can Pneumatic common was at its highest in two years. Arizona Copper preferred attained a record high. There was more business in Zinc than in any other issue. Trading was quiet. The metal situation, however, is gaining and improving. In London spot and futures were 15s. lower, with electrolytic unchanged. Lead advanced 5s. 9d and spelter was £2 10s. higher. In the New York metal market prices were unchanged. Zinc is quoted at 14 to 14½c. per pound, futures at 12¾ to 13¾. Lead was offered at 4.60 to 4.65. Spelter is dull. The Boston bank statement shows an increase of $71,000 in cash excess.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

A True Representative of the Real Harvard Spirit

ALBERT BUSHNELL HART, professor of American history at Harvard College, was asked the other day to express his opinion concerning the temporary support which Charles Sumner Bird proposes to give the Republican party in Massachusetts. Professor Hart said:

"I can't train in that camp. It is the same old rigmarole. McCall hasn't got any progressive sentiment and he doesn't know what it is. I shan't vote for him.

"Progressives ought to vote for their candidate for Governor in order to sustain the future influence of the Progressive party. They will assert their influence by voting together. This will be a close election, and if the Progressives of last year stand true to their colors they will decide the election.

"The object of the present Republican party is not to accomplish any real reforms. They have no interest in popularizing government. They do not desire to place the government in the hands of the people or to govern for those who are unable to take their place in the government.

"It is not in their tenets to enact humane or beneficial legislation for the masses. The present Republican party is the party of special privileges and special interests.

"It is run by the people who have a great deal and intend to hold it. No party that is popularly supposed to be controlled by special interests can be permanently successful.

"I shall vote for Mr. Clark for Governor because I believe in the principles of the party he represents."

Every word of Professor Hart's statement is true. The Republican party, in Massachusetts especially, holds out no hope for real Progressives who want a dependable party with its face permanently set in the direction of progress. Temporarily, it is true that Republicans have made a considerable concession to Progressive sentiment in the declaration for the Constitutional Convention. Undoubtedly, it is also true that Mr. McCall would not tarnish the closing hours of his public career by any disingenuous attitude on this question. But so far as the Republican organization is concerned, the concession was involuntary and made for the purpose of drawing the Progressives into a trap in which their organization and power can be destroyed. It is a piece of political strategy parallel to the strategic retreat in military operations, by which ground is deliberately given to the enemy in order that he may be induced to advance into an unfavorable position where he may there be destroyed. Thus General Joffre, the commander-in-chief of the French armies, drew the great German forces into an unfavorable position and defeated them in the mighty battle of the Marne. Thus the Germans, under Von Hindenburg, drew the Russians into the Mazurian Lake region and defeated them at Tananberg.

Progressives should beware of Greeks bearing gifts. Sentiment which is unorganized loses nearly all its influence. It is to disorganize the Progressive sentiment in Massachusetts that the Republican reactionaries have bent their energy.

Harvard men will be pleased to read the untrammelled opinions of Professor Hart. Those who took courses under him will remember how intensely American he always was and how learned in American history. Men like Professors Hart and Johnson redeem the university from the mistakes of President Lowell. Harvard is not a reactionary institution. In the great crises of American history it has done its full duty and its sons have always been found where work was hardest and the danger greatest. It was the president of Harvard before whom the American soldiers uncovered to hear the prayer at midnight on their march to Bunker Hill.

Probably more men in the class of 1861 at Harvard gave their lives to save the Union than in any other class in any other school in the country. President Lowell's interference on the Bourbon side of our political and social questions, as in his opposition to the Initiative and Referendum and to other progressive reforms, is not representative of the true Harvard spirit. But it must always be remembered that the President of Harvard is selected largely for his ability to raise money, and that this money is so often the surplus profits of railroad and other corporation mismanagement and chicane that it is very difficult to get it without bending the knee to mammon. But the true spirit of Harvard is found in opinions of men like Hart and in the lives Harvard gave to the Union. The last verse of Harvard's song, "Fair Harvard," expresses her real soul:

"Farewell, be thy destinies onward and bright
To thy children the lessons still give,
With freedom to think, and with patience to bear,
And for right ever bravely to live.
Let not moss-covered error moor thee at its side,
As the world on truth's current glides by;
Be the herald of light, and the bearer of love
Till the stock of the Puritans die."

Once-Overs

Are you ashamed of your country relations?

When your relatives from the rural districts come to town, do you take them only to the places where they will be least likely to meet your friends?

The sort of friends who would judge your relatives from the standpoint of clothes or unfamiliarity with the ways of the city are the sort to "shed" before a rainy day. Their friendship is not worth much, and won't compare with the smallest part of the love your country friends have for you.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Only Way

There's but one possible solution.
No other way can be thought of.
The matter must be decided, and decided now. There can be no faltering, no quibbling. Words will not serve. Deeds must decide. Let it be done at once. Colonel House, Oswald Villard and Dudley Field Malone must be locked into a room and the one who comes out uncatched will be the best man at the wedding.

The Daniel Webster of the Seas

If, as Mr. Asquith admits, the freedom of the seas is a debatable matter, it will be considered that John Paul Jones was some debater.

Tightwad!

A contemporary offers "$5 for your love story"! If there are any letters in it hold out for a hundred or ten thousand, according to their temperature.

All They Ask Is a Chance

It is difficult to secure guides in Maine this Fall. Most of them have gone over to Europe to find safety in the trenches.

After Mother Goose

John Bull was a Briton,
John Bull was a thief,
John Bull seized, condemned and sold

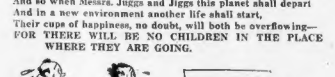
The Yankee packer's beef.
Meanwhile the Yankee government,
Calmly looking on,
Said: "Of course that beef was ours,
But you can have it, John."

Children Not Admitted

WHEN Juggs comes home, a trifle lit, at three a. m. and tries
To get a good refreshing sleep before it's time to rise
And hurry to the job again, some baby overhead
Insists, in strident accents, that it's time that he was fed.
So Juggs sends for the janitor and gruffly tells him that
He'll have to put that baby out or he will leave the flat.

WHEN Jiggs, on Sunday afternoon, asks in the boys to play
A quiet little game of draw to pass the time away,
The kids make such a racket as they romp around the hall
That Jiggs' fleet can hardly play the grand old game at all.
And Jiggs declares he cannot live with children all about,
And writes to tell that landlord that he'll have to put them out.

BUT things are always so arranged that if we suffer here
Our sufferings are ended when we reach another sphere.
And so when Messrs. Juggs and Jiggs this planet shall depart
And in a new environment another life shall start,
Their cups of happiness, no doubt, will both be overflowing—
FOR THERE WILL BE NO CHILDREN IN THE PLACE
WHERE THEY ARE GOING.



Only Imitators

The wily little Japs
Are most imitative chaps;
They imitate with Oriental craft,
The predatory tricks
Of enlightened politics
Which we commonly denominate as graft.
But, though meeting some success,
They were lacking in finesse,
Which is why their feeble imitations fail.
They could not get through their beans
The progressive grafter's means
Of securing safe immunity from jail.

He'd Be So Lonely Over There

After all there would be no sense in Bryan's going to Europe just now. All the Tyrolean yodlers are at the front.

In Again; Out Again!

You may lick, you may wallop
The Russ as you will,
But the glink comes across
With a getaway still.

Still It's Something

The President says he wants to pay for Shadowlawn "what he has been accustomed to pay for his Summer home." Judging by the pictures of the Cornish House and those of Shadowlawn, that would just about be a fair rental for the Shadowlawn garage.

The Emancipation of Woman

By Rabbi M. M. Eichler
of Temple Chabet Shalom.

MAN'S treatment of woman is the barometer of civilization. In ancient times woman was a chattel that was bought and sold like any other piece of property. She was "given away" in marriage by her father or guardian, a phrase still used in the marriage service. The married woman lost her identity in the husband. According to the common law of England, the husband and the wife are one and the husband is THE one. Among many nations of antiquity woman was little more than a slave and a drudge.

Gradually, however, her condition improved, due to the civilizing influences of religion and education. When we reach the mediaeval ages we find that woman as a rule is no longer oppressed, but instead she is patronized. In the age of chivalry woman was denied her rights and given favors. Intellectually and morally she was considered inferior to man, and some theologians SERIOUSLY DOUBTED whether she had a soul.

The process of woman's emancipation has reached a third stage. We begin to recognize that she is man's equal not only intellectually and morally, but also politically. She should have a voice not only in the management of the home, but also of the country, which is but an aggregation of homes. Many nations in Europe and several States in America have given woman the right to vote and thereby entered the highest stage of civilization. Shall our beloved Commonwealth join the ranks of the progressive nations or lag behind? IT IS UP TO YOU, MY FELLOW CITIZENS. Those who will vote "No" will thereby signify that Massachusetts is not yet ready to give woman the full measure of justice due to her, and that democracy must still be spelled with a small "d."

And what of those estimable ladies who refuse to accept suffrage? They remind me of the slave who, as related in Exodus, saying, "I love my master," refused to be emancipated. One of the best arguments for woman suffrage is furnished by the attitude of the "Antis." They are the tragic product of ages of mental slavery and lack of self-reliance. We should give woman civic equality and thereby broaden her horizon and help to rear a generation of mothers who shall love freedom and equality and inspire their children with a passion for liberty and justice.

Medical Science and the War

How Anti-Typhoid Vaccine Has Saved the Lives of Thousands

By Woods Hutchinson, A. M., M. D.

WHEN the present war broke out every one of the various armies involved which had a competent medical staff started on a campaign of complete and universal vaccination. Partly because the laboratories were bankrupted by the enormous quantities of vaccine required and partly on account of superstition and sentimental objections on the part of some of the soldiers, this result was slow in being reached.

But so many protected men were already scattered throughout the armies to begin with that the actual results were astonishingly good. The smallest amount of typhoid that ever was known in an army actually in the field! The whole of the French and English armies, for instance, something over four million men, yielding only a couple of thousand of cases during the entire year and less than 300 deaths.

In the days before vaccination there would have been at least 200,000 cases and 20,000 deaths. There is simply no arguing against a result like that, and anti-typhoid vaccination has emphatically come to stay. It is now being used by boards of health among civil populations whenever outbreaks of the disease are threatened, and nurses in hospitals during "typhoid season" are protected by it as a matter of routine. The protection lasts about two years and probably longer.

A similar vaccine of dead germs is now being used with excellent results against one of the serious blood diseases. There appears to be good prospect that a similar product will prove useful in certain forms of pneumonia. Crops of boils and acne, or pustular "bad complexions," are often cleared up or greatly helped by a special vaccine, and almost every month adds another to the list of the diseases against which we can protect ourselves by this method of administering in advance "a hair of the dog" that would bite you if he got the chance.

These dead germs and their products, called vaccines, may be regarded as a sort of appetizers or digestive tonics which stir up the body cells to produce ferments which can be utilized against living specimens of the germs. Of course, if large quantities of germs were to suddenly break into the blood all at once this comparatively small amount of digestive power would hardly be able to deal with them, although it would probably make the attack milder and shorter.

But so faithful and eternally vigilant are the serried ranks of the epithelial, or skin cells, covering the surfaces of our bodies and lining the interior of our food tube that their defence is usually wonderfully perfect. It is only, as a rule, small and scattered groups of disease germs that can force their way through a single crack or wound or fissure. So that the familiar "ounce of prevention" of digestive ferment on hand at the right time and spot is as good as not merely pounds, but tons of cure.

The Mother

By Jane McLean

SOME saw her toil-worn hands, their roughened skin
Betraying menial tasks and ceaseless grind—
Work brings contentment to the mind within,
But leaves no rose leaves on the path behind.

And others glancing at her figure bowed,
Counted her meekness as a servile brand;
And, poorly clad, they dreamed not she was proud
And lived a life they could not understand.

But some there were who, startled by her eyes,
Read there her secret as she walked alone;
They held the mystery of the quiet skies,
For baby hands had nestled in her own.
